BRITISH TROOPS REPORTED TO HAVE LANDED ON GREEK ISLAND

General Metaxas Appeals To Italy To Treat Athens As An Open Town

Special to the "Telegraph"

IT IS AUTHORITATIVELY STATED, SAYS A "UNITED PRESS" REPORT FROM BELGRADE, THAT BRITISH TROOPS HAVE LANDED ON THE GREEK ISLAND OF CEPHALONIA, WHICH IS SITUATED OFF THE WEST COAST OF GREECE, DOMINATING THE ENTRANCE TO THE GULF OF CORINTH.

According to an earlier London report, says "United Press", His Majesty King George VI and Mr. Churchill both sent messages to King George of Greece and General Metaxas the Greek Premier, promising "all the assistance in our power."

General Metaxas, says an Athens report, has appealed to Italy to treat Athens as an open city. The evacuation of 2,500 British subjects is being held up pending Italy's reply.

Italy's first gesture against Greece, however, was to bomb Athens early yesterday afternoon from more than 10,000 feet. The northern environs were attacked, and the city proper has not yet been bombed.

At 3.30 p.m. 15 Greek fighter planes and anti-aircraft guns drove off the ten bombers which were attacking the Tatoi aerodrome.

The raid on Tatoi was directed principally against the harbour, the Palace of Justice and the telegraph office. The population showed no signs of panic.

Yelling Crowds

The Greek General Staff announced that Italian planes flew over the aerodrome at Tatoi and dropped a number of bombs. They also bombed Eleusis where the burst of anti-aircraft fire was heard at 10 o'clock yesterday morning. The planes were not visible, but crowds in the street stood yelling and waving Greek, English, American and Turkish flags.

All schools are closed. The King's proclamation was read throughout the town over loud-speakers.

A state of siege has been declared through Greece and the mobilisation of the civilian population has been ordered.

A black-out has also been ordered in the Athens district. The Governor of Athens has issued instructions to meet any possible suspension of food and water supplies as well as A.R.P.

Before receiving various Ministers yesterday, General Metaxas con-

BRITAIN'S KING SENDS MESSAGE

LONDON, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—A message from King George VI to the "Greek nation and my cousin George, King of Hellenes," says:

"There are doubtless hard trials to be borne but we shall both meet them in firm faith of ultimate victory. We may hope, indeed, that we are already near the turn of the tide when the power of the aggressor will begin to ebb and our own growing might will prevail."

versed with General Inonu, President of Turkey, by telephone.

Second Raid Alarm

ATHENS, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—A second air raid alarm was sounded in Athens at 2.10 p.m. lasting 50 minutes. A.A. guns went into action.

Attack on Florina

LONDON, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—The main weight of the Italian attack appears directed against Florina, near the principal pass leading out of the Albanian mountains. Greek troops are resisting stubbornly all along the line and have even advanced at one point into Albania.

The Italians also appear to be making a second thrust towards Epirus.

Italian troops in Albania, about 180,000, are equipped with 250 tanks.

Comparative Strengths

LONDON, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—The Italians have now in Albania ten or eleven divisions and some auxiliary troops numbering 200,000 altogether, "Reuter" learns in authoritative quarters in London.

Foodstuffs and communications have been prepared in order to avoid reliance on sea communications and it is known that there has been considerable road construction near the frontier in readiness for an advance. The biggest concentration of troops is at Argyrocastro, and the second largest at Koritza.

Double Advance

It would, therefore, appear that the Italians are planning a double advance, the first along a line parallel to the coast and to the west of Janina with that town as the main objective, and the second from Koritza towards Salonika.

The Janina route offers few natural difficulties and it is believed will be less strongly defended, whereas the advance from Koritza would encounter mountain barriers and the Greek Army's main defence line.

ABYSSINIA CAMP RAIDED

NAIROBI, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—A successful attack on a military camp in Abyssinia is announced in a communique which says that on October 26 South African aircraft attacked Maji, Abyssinia, which was bombed and machine-gunned.

Direct hits were scored on buildings, causing fires and large explosions.

Despite heavy anti-aircraft and machine-gun fire from the ground, all aircraft were unscathed.

Weekly Summary—Battle Of Britain Enemy Lose Two Planes To One Many More Pilots

LONDON, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—It is stated authoritatively that German losses in aircraft over Britain during the week ending midnight, Oct. 26, totalled 39 of which at least eight were shot down at night.

British losses were 18 and nine pilots.

SKODA PLANT IS ATTACKED R.A.F. Score Hits

LONDON, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—The first R.A.F. bombing raid on the Skoda Works at Pilsen, Czechoslovakia, ended in the early morning to-day, which is the 22nd anniversary of the founding of the Czechoslovakian state.

The Works are one of the three biggest armament factories in the world, covering 400 acres and employing 50,000 workers. It fell into German hands at the time of the occupation in March, 1939.

When the raiders were near the target after a 750-miles flight from the English coast, visibility was so bad that they spent an hour searching for it before the great plant was seen silhouetted against the snow-covered ground.

Fire Breaks Out

Fierce fires and explosions followed the attacks, says the Air Ministry, and a pilot, who made three separate runs, bombing by the light of flares dropped by other aircraft, reported that all his heavy bombs found their mark. These were quickly followed by incendiary bombs which set fire to the damaged buildings.

This is one of the most ambitious bombing raids carried out by the R.A.F., who prepared for such long distance flights with leaflet raids in Czechoslovakia and Austria in the early days of the war.

PENNIES FROM HEAVEN SET A PROBLEM

Money which rained all day long into City Square, Leeds, covering the flagstones with copper and the gilt of silver, set the authorities a problem recently.

The money was thrown by passers-by at a wrecked Messerschmitt, brought to Leeds in readiness for the City's War Weapons Week. No one had a licence to collect the money charmed out of the citizens' pockets by sight of the damaged war plane. It was decided to earmark the city square windfall for the local Spitfire fund.

The Two Dictators Jabber At Florence Three-Hour Meeting

SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH"—ROME, Oct. 28 (UP).—It is officially reported that the talks between Hitler and Mussolini ended shortly before 2 o'clock this afternoon.

The conversations started about 11 o'clock in the morning. After they had finished, Hitler, Mussolini, Count Ciano, von Ribbentrop, General Kietel and Ambassador von Mackensen had lunch together.

"Reuter" says that Hitler left Florence for Germany at 8 p.m., and quotes a Stockholm report that the German dictator may shortly meet King Leopold of the Belgians.

Peregrinating Laval

LONDON, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—M. Laval has left for Paris for further discussion with the Germans and he will be joined by General Huntzinger, the Vichy Minister of War.

This morning, following a meeting of the Cabinet and the Council of Ministers, a decree was issued forbidding Frenchmen to listen to British broadcasts in public places.

Kotur Captured, Says Report

NEW YORK, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—It is reported from Belgrade that the Italians have captured Kotur, six miles within Greece.

It is reported from Sofia that an emergency session of the Cabinet has been summoned for this afternoon.

HOLLANDERS Leave D.E.I. For R.A.F.

LONDON, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—Pilots from the Netherlands East Indies are shortly leaving Batavia for England, according to the Batavia wireless to-day.

The pilots will join Dutch colleagues in collaborating with the R.A.F. A Dutch East Indian legion will follow shortly to join the Dutch Legion already in England.

Names of New French Council of Defence

LONDON, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—The names of members of the Council of Defence of the French Empire appointed by General Charles de Gaulle are now announced as follows:

General Georges Catroux, former Governor-General of Indo-China; Vice-Admiral Emile Muselier, C. in C. of the Free French Navy; and Air Force.

General de Larminat, Governor-General of Chad territory; General Ugot, Governor-General of the Pacific; General Sice, of the Army Medical Corps in Africa.

Professor Rene Cassin, former President of the Ex-Servicemen's Association; Reverend Father Theophy Argenta-

Colonel Le Claire, Commissioner of the French Cameroons.

Italy Not Deceived

NEW YORK, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—The Fascist reformation of France has merely been outlined without any "consenting echo" from the people of France, who cling hopefully to British resistance and admire the rebel, de Gaulle, says the "Herald Tribune" correspondent in Rome quoting the "Popolo d'Italia".

The Paris correspondent of Rome newspapers says that de Gaulle has achieved great popularity and Frenchmen long for revenge and the failure of the Italian campaign.

TURKEY AND ITALY No State Of War Exists Yet

ISTANBUL, Oct. 28

(UP).—Turkish Government officials this afternoon categorically declared that no state of war exists between Turkey and Italy.

Metaxas Busy

ATHENS, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—It is officially stated that General Metaxas, the Greek Premier, had a 15-minute telephone talk with the Turkish President to-day.

General Metaxas also received the British, Yugo-Slav and Turkish Ministers.

Yugo-Slavia To Be Neutral

LONDON, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—Primary reports from Belgrade say that Yugo-Slavia will probably adopt a neutral attitude while no general mobilisation has been ordered in Bulgaria although the country's first A.R.P. measures have been announced.

Bulgaria Also

LONDON, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—Our policy to-day is one of neutrality and definitely there is no reason to believe that it will change, declared a Bulgarian diplomat in London.

Neutrality Act Applied To Greece

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—The United States is applying the Neutrality Act to Greece.

President Roosevelt reached Newark on his way from New York to Washington to-day and is reported to have had telephone discussions with Mr. Cordell Hull, the Secretary of the Treasury and the Attorney General.

The President was to make two speeches to-night and his secretary, Mr. Stephen Early, said his plans would have to depend on whether he could get by air from Washington the necessary papers to sign to apply the Neutrality Act to Greece, freezing her credits and cash in the United States.

Mr. Cordell Hull is understood to have been instructed to draft the necessary orders.

R.A.F. In Middle East Will Assist Greece

LONDON, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—The planes and men sent by air and sea recently to reinforce the R.A.F. in the Middle East should not be long in joining battle with the Italians to protect Greece.

While the Italian threat to Egypt was the major motive for the increase of the R.A.F. there, Italy's latest move was clearly foreseen at the time.

The fact remains that the R.A.F. is now faced with the beginning of its sternest task—forestalling, with the British Navy and Army, the Axis drive to the east and the oil that Hitler and Mussolini need so badly.

The necessity to prevent dispersal of effort which could be used to better effect elsewhere must limit the extent of the immediate help that can be given Greece in the air. All that can possibly be done at once will be done.

Navy Will Answer

The British Navy is almost certain to be the first to answer Greece's call for "certain assistance" and with it will move the Fleet Air Arm.

The Greek air force, modelled on the R.A.F. and equipped with British and French planes, is sturdy but desperately small.

British fighters have gone to the Near East in a steady stream for some time and heavy bombers could operate from Alexandria, Haifa or Cyprus. But the offensive, like the defensive, power of the R.A.F. fighting with the Greek Air Force, will be immeasurably improved by the use of landing grounds in Greece from which medium bombers and fighters could operate against the invader at shorter range.

LONDON, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—Survivors from the Empress of Britain, landed at a western port on Sunday. They declared that the 42,500-ton liner was bombed 700 miles off Ireland on Saturday morning.

The attacking aircraft then disappeared but returned and dropped four more bombs, including incendiaries.

A number of people were killed when the bombs exploded and some of the ship's lifeboats caught fire and could not be lowered. But as there was little danger of the ship sinking immediately, there was plenty of time for the passengers to take

DESTROYERS FROM AMERICA

The news that fifty American destroyers are being disposed of to Britain will come with unfeigned relief and satisfaction to those who know something of the work of the British destroyers since the beginning of the war.

Ships of round about 1,200 tons and 35 knots speed, armed with 4-inch guns, the destroyers transferred for service under the White Ensign are no longer new. They form part of the United States building programme of the last war, most of them having been completed between 1918 and 1920.

After serving with the United States fleet, they were later relegated to the reserve and kept in full running condition and ready for any emergency. Their age does not matter. Many British destroyers of similar date have done yeoman service as convoy escorts and in many other directions during the last few months.

The names of not a few of these older craft have cropped up in connection with the operations in Norway, and Holland, and during the now historic withdrawal of the British and Allied troops from Boulogne and Dunkirk.

Between 1914 and 1918 there was hardly a purpose for which destroyers were not employed at one time or another. They were used as anti-submarine screens with the heavy ships of the fleet whenever they went to sea, for beating off hostile destroyer attacks with their guns, for attacking the German fleet with their torpedoes, as well as for making protective smoke-screens. They escorted minelayers and aircraft-carriers, and towed kite balloons.

Provided with listening devices, rams and depth charges, they formed hunting flotillas for harrying the U-boats. They were used for coastal patrols, and for conveying transports and merchantmen far out at sea in every sort of weather.

In the Dardanelles they landed and embarked troops, while in the same campaign, in the Suez Canal and on the Flanders coast, they bombarded troops and gun positions ashore. They were utilized for minelaying and for minesweeping, as well as for raiding harbours in the islands of the Aegean.

It has been much the same in this war, except that their work has been more varied still, and much more onerous, with the advent of aircraft and such things as magnetic mines.

Their work at Boulogne and Dunkirk is known all over the world; but who at the beginning of this war, would have thought of ocean-going destroyers chasing the Germans through a two-hundred mile gap in a Norwegian fjord ten miles long well beyond the Arctic Circle, and varying in width between three-quarters and a quarter of a mile. Yet this they did at the second battle of Narvik on April 13, to see their stricken adversaries hard up against the ice at the very end of the narrow waterway.

When this war started the British Empire possessed 185 destroyers of all ages, counting those in the Royal Australian and Canadian Navies. Some thirty-eight others were under construction or projected, of which the greater number must now be completed or nearing completion.

It can be assumed, too, that the building programme in ships of the destroyer type has been greatly enhanced since the outbreak of war, as they are needed for so many different purposes.

Their losses, thirty at the time of writing, have not been light.

It is unwise to estimate the number of British destroyers now in service; but with those required with the fleets in Home waters, the Eastern and Western Mediterranean, the Red Sea and Gulf of Aden, besides others working with the convoys of merchantmen, in submarine hunting and a variety of other purposes, it cannot be said that Britain has over-sufficient for her manifold needs.

In the last war, when, during the unrestricted submarine campaign of 1917, Britain had more than 400 vessels of the destroyer class in operation, they were spoken of by the naval historian, Sir Julian Corbett, as being "run off their legs." He went on to say that no praise could be too high for the men who endured the strain, or for those who built the no-less-sorely-tried hulls and engines.

Six American destroyers sailed from the United States to co-operate on April 24, 1917, and by July 5, there were thirty-four American destroyers working from Queenstown, some meeting the American re-inforcements from France far out at sea, others the ordinary convoys of merchantmen coming to the British Isles.

Some 400 American vessels of war and 61,000 officers and men of the United States Navy saw service in European waters before the armistice in November, 1918. Of the ships eighty-five were destroyers, most of them modern; but six, old and under 500 tons displacement, made the long journey of 12,000 miles from the Philippines to Gibraltar.

The value of the services of the Americans can hardly be exaggerated. Before their arrival in an area of about 25,000 square miles in the western approaches to the English Channel, through which flowed an enormous volume of trade, there were sometimes as few as four British destroyers available for patrol work. Never were there more than fifteen.

The American building programme, embarked upon immediately after her rupture with Germany, was almost without precedent. It included 275 destroyers, 447 submarine chasers, 99 submarines, 112 "Eagle boats" intended for coastal patrol work, and 54 minesweepers, not all of which were completed by November, 1918.

The speed with which some of the destroyers were built constituted a world's record. The pre-war time for completion was between twenty months and two years, but 1917 one, the "Ward," was launched 17½ days after her keel had been laid, and commissioned in seventy days. The "Reid" was commissioned in 45½ working days from the time she was laid down.

As already indicated, the British destroyers have been hard driven since the beginning of this war. One of them steamed 52,248 miles in the first nine months; another, 25,840 miles from September 3 to December 31, 1939, during which she was at sea for 101 days out of 110.

One escort destroyer which I was on board for more than a week had done a thirteen-day trip at sea, followed by thirty-six hours in harbour for refuelling, storing and provisioning, and then another eleven days at sea. As a general rule, worse the weather or the fogger, the longer the sea trips.

In an order to the fleet in March the Admiralty appreciated "the large expenditure of effort which the care and maintenance of machinery and equipment throughout the winter months has involved in circumstances of continuous watchkeeping."

FUNNY SIDE UP

By Abner Dean

By TAFFRAIL
famous British Naval writer

That this amount of steaming has been possible is a tribute to the designers and builders, but still more so the personnel of all branches who have maintained the efficiency of their ships under the most difficult conditions, especially in view of the dilution of complements which has of necessity taken place.

And what of the future?

Britain has been spoken of as a fortress, as indeed she is, armed at every point and her armaments constantly increasing. Germany holds 2,000 miles of the coast from Norway, through Denmark, Holland, Belgium and France to the Spanish frontier.

The Royal Navy is busily engaged in home waters, on both basins of the Mediterranean, in the Red Sea and the Gulf of Aden—in any and every sea throughout the world where German or Italian activity may be manifest by surface ships, U-boats and aircraft. Never, since the beginning of its history has the British Empire been engaged in so gigantic a struggle against the forces of evil and for the benefit of all mankind. However, it is idle to talk of Britain, the heart and nerve centre of the Empire, being in any sense a beleaguered fortress. In spite of the merchant ship losses, new construction, captures, and tonnage acquired through the German occupation of Norway, Denmark, Holland, Belgium and France, the mercantile tonnage working in the Allied cause is greater than at the beginning of the war. Moreover, and what is more important still, neither German nor Italian merchantmen are at sea on the broad oceans, while the British merchant fleet continues its task of supplying the country with the essentials without which it cannot exist. This all comes about through the overwhelming strength of British Sea Power.

Britain may be hard pressed; but is successfully holding her own.

Neither German U-boat nor aircraft have prevented British warships from operating, or her merchantmen from sailing the seas.

Nevertheless, the acquisition of fifty most useful destroyers from the United States is a most heartening and timely addition to our naval strength, and a token of the sympathy and unity of feeling that animates the peoples of the two great Democracies of a troubled world.

VETERANS OF 1940

From RICHARD CAPELL

The green and pleasant counties comprised in the area of the Southern Command never looked more beautiful.

But this time the reason for a tour of these pastoral valleys, these headlands and beaches, was not the charm of the country, but the defences, military and naval.

Compared with Eastern England, the South was always a kind of Cinderella as regards its defences. An invasion of Eastern England was in '14-18 a possibility always taken into account, but the South was naturally considered to be practically safe.

When last June the whole face of things changed, there had been no land defences constructed in the South since the days of Napoleon III's Empire. Now, Palmerston's mid-Victorian forts may, after all, come in useful.

To see the South after the East and the North is to be struck once again with the variety of landscape and seascape contained within our little England.

The South presents problems to the Army Commander remarkably different from those of other areas, but it also puts trump cards in his hand.

In a tour of many hundred miles it was agreeable to think, as we made our steep and winding way through Southern England one day, of the plight in which hostile tanks would surely find themselves between those high hedges, where the narrow and twisting road presents no view.

In exalted positions in the Southern Command one meets men who won or enhanced their reputations this year in France, and they are concerned with the lessons not of '14-18 but of 1940.

The core of the Southern Army consists of troops who have fought in France and Norway, and in the eyes of the rest they are veterans. "The new soldiers hang on their words"—this was an expression I heard at one headquarters.

THREE SERVICES MEET

There is a new collaboration between the Navy, the Army and the Air Force in the defensive work in the South. "We meet," a general said to me, "at high-water mark on the beaches."

Close co-operation within the Army is a result of this year's campaign in France. The career of the British professional soldier is typically a business of guarding outposts of Empire with small forces. But now in the organisation of the defence of England all arms are closely associated in exercises and preparation.

The Southern, like the Eastern and Northern armies, is very mobile. It is an army on wheels. Fifty, 60 and 70 miles a day are covered in marching exercises.

The parrying of an invasion is the absorbing thought, as well it may be with the enemy in occupation of Normandy and Brittany.

Invasion may come any night; that is a thought all are taught to bear in mind. And the watchword is: "If the invaders can't be shot in their boats they must not be allowed above high-water mark."

HOME GUARD'S VALUE

Again, as in the North so in the South, appreciation of the Home Guard was heard in the highest quarters.

The G.O.C.-in-C., Lt.-Gen. Auchinleck, says that since June he has been compelled to change his mind about the Home Guard. He began by being a little sceptical about their usefulness, but is glad now to allow that they may play a vital part.

The men are getting more useful every day, and the more they are asked to extend their scope the better they like it. To put it roughly: The task of the Home Guard is to hold pill-boxes and road-blocks, leaving to the Army proper the job of counter-attacking and throwing the enemy back into the sea.

A morning was spent with the gunners who look out to sea from the neighbourhood of one of the southern ports. They will, one feels, be disappointed if the opportunity never comes for them to fling their missiles at an invading armada.

A day or two with the Royal Navy is a heartening experience. Circumstances have brought into the Royal Navy, or into association with it, ships and men of more nationalities than it has ever embraced in all the centuries. The admiral who commands at one centre has half a League of Nations under him. He speaks in the highest terms of the Poles.

SHOTS AT PARACHUTISTS

THE Germans have been guilty of many mean and cowardly acts in this war, as in the last, but nothing has aroused more anger and contempt throughout this country than the machine-gunning of baled-out British airmen by Messerschmitt pilots.

This is partly because even in the most desperate of wars the British people believe in the practice of mercy and chivalry towards a fallen (in this case a falling) foe. It is inconceivable that any British airman would degrade the Service by shooting at a German rival who had been compelled to leap from his damaged machine. Yet, according to one writer, the position in international law is quite clear, and not exactly what the man in the street would expect it to be.

If the parachutist, having baled out, seems certain to land in enemy territory, he is deemed to be about to be captured as a matter of course. He ought not, therefore, to be fired upon. But if he is falling towards friendly territory, he is not to be taken as one who has surrendered or will surrender, but as one who may fight again. By this reasoning it is a legitimate act of war to kill or wound him. But the majority even of German airmen probably consider the rule more honoured in the breach than in the observance, if only because, as the air war is going, none of them knows when his turn will come to bale-out over British territory or British-controlled waters.

Certain it is, that the Nazi Government, ever ready to plead humanity when this suits its purpose, would raise a great outcry were British airmen or ground forces to shoot a German parachutist. We have seen how sensitive it is about the other type of parachute specialist, the kind who "distinguished" themselves in Holland and elsewhere. The Berlin Government's opinion seems to be that these gentry, as Mr. Churchill has called them, should be received with special honour as distinguished visitors.

GREEK NEWS REEL

ATHENS

The war which has broken out between Italy and Greece brings to a head a long standing issue between these two countries.

Since 1923 Italy has coveted the Greek island of Corfu, which an Italian force attack and captured in that year. But the strategic implications of Greece in the present war, with her ports and naval bases, are far reaching. Greece occupies in the Mediterranean a position that can be either an insurmountable barrier to the Germans and Italians or a valuable asset in their drive towards the East. For instance, Allied occupation of the Ionian islands off the West Coast of Greece would weaken the present Italian control of the Adriatic. In the South Aegean Sea the occupation of the Cyclades Islands, which lie athwart the main Mediterranean Black Sea trade route, would be likely to offset the Italian possessions and bases in the Dodecanese Islands.

Another strategic importance of the ports and naval bases of Greece and her islands hinges on the war in North Africa. In Italian hands these ports would menace British sea power in the Eastern Mediterranean and materially affect the balance of power in the threatened Italian attack on Egypt. Similarly British control of these ports would secure our own Eastern Mediterranean bases in Egypt and Cyprus. And the considerable advantage of use by the R. A. F. of Greek airfields should not be overlooked. The chief handicap at present in our air operations against Italy is the distance between Italian targets and our home bases.

Along her land frontiers Greece would be most vulnerable from the north-west across the Struma Valley. The Albanian frontier from Lake Ohrida (which the Italians may now be using as a seaplane base) to the coast on the Adriatic Sea is mountainous and very poorly served with roads.

METAXAS

Further, the area round Janina, the Greek town which has been threatened by invasion during the last few days, is purely an Albanian area. There are 18,700 Albanians living in Greece, mostly concentrated in the North-West. The nationalist aspirations of this minority might well lead to effective cooperation with the present revolt in Albania.

The diplomatic repercussions of such a conflict would necessarily involve the three other members of the Balkan Entente—Yugo-Slavia, Rumania and Turkey.

Jugo-Slavia, with Germany on her northern frontier, will think twice before involving herself in the war. Rumania has enough problems on her hands with the Hungarian and Bulgarian claims on her territory. That leaves Turkey. By her pact with Britain Turkey bound herself to enter the war if it spread to the Eastern Mediterranean. But Turkey's attitude now largely depends on Russia's foreign policy. The recent Russo-Italian rapprochement may indicate that Turkey in turn will hold her hand.

But General Metaxas refused to renounce, under Axis pressure, the unilateral British guarantee given to Greece in April, 1939. So Britain is likely to be, in the first place, the main support for Greece.

FACTS

GREEK ARMY.—80,000 regulars, 600,000 war potential.

NAVY.—2 old cruisers, 10 destroyers, 6 submarines.

AIR FORCE.—10 groups of 3 flights.

POPULATION.—6,936,000.

MINORITIES.—191,254 Turks, 81,000 Macedonians, 16,775 Bulgars.

CHIEF EXPORTS.—Currants, barley, tobacco and wine. Greece also produces over 200,000 tons of iron and 132,000 tons of iron pyrites a year. Great Britain took £1,112,000 worth of currants in 1938. Value of currency in circulation £18,906,000 (notes). Exports from Great Britain to Greece in 1938 amounted to £3,751,707.

MERCHANT NAVY.—1,855,000 tons; 589 steam and motor vessels.

PRINCIPAL PORTS.—Piraeus, Volo, Salonika, Dede-Agatch, Nauplia.

John Metaxas, Dictator of nominally democratic Greece, came into power in 1936, and has ruled the country with an iron rod. He is 66 years old, a friend of the King both before and after the Restoration, is reputed to have strong Axis sympathies, but is in reality the most shrewd of all the Balkan statesmen.

MEN WHO KEEP THE PLANES FLYING

By AN AIR CORRESPONDENT.

Behind the flying strength of the R.A.F. is a vast ground army of craftsmen and tradesmen. Without their skill and craftsmanship, the great air attacks on enemy positions, from Norway to the African deserts, would fail to find their mark.

Without their constant attention to every detail, the life of the pilot would be gravely imperilled.

These workmen have been recruited for the Air Force from all sorts of trades; there are carpenters and blacksmiths, painters and copper-smiths, electricians and motor mechanics, instrument makers and meteorological workers, butchers and cooks, store-keepers and tailors. Among them are thousands of volunteers from the Dominions and Colonies.

Let us consider some of these men and the work they are doing. Since all of them are essential to the maintenance of the ever-expanding R.A.F., let us take them in alphabetical order.

First come the armourers—men who load and prepare guns for air firing men who know all about ammunition and bombs. They must also know about the construction and action of bombs, the installation and checking of bomb sights and gun sights, the method of working a parachute flares—to name only a few of their duties.

KEEPING GUNS GOING

Every day, for example, the armourer officer and his armourers wait on fighter aerodromes ready to do a rush job. Speeding out of the sky comes a fighter section—three Spitfires, perhaps, fresh from patrol, possibly from action.

The pilots hurry across the field to make their reports. The armourers go to the machines and while refuelling takes place, scrutinize the guns—one armourer and his mate to each wing of the aircraft. Each gun, if it has been fired, is stripped of its empty or half-empty belt. Its parts are swiftly examined for breaks or stoppages. Any replacements needed are made without delay.

The barrels are pulled through with a cleaning rod, moveable parts are oiled and, finally, the full belts are fed into their chamber.

All this is done in a few minutes. Back goes the report: "Blue section ready to take off again, hungry flying men at all times of the day. The armament officer, responsible for the day. And the good cook will

TRADESMEN IN WAR

Then there is the blacksmith and welder—the man who must know how to forge a head-lamp bracket for a car, weld a steel ring to given dimensions, or a new link on a chain, make and temper a cold chisel, forge, set and temper a spring, weld an aluminium arm to a crankcase. He must be an expert in the use and care of hydraulic valves and have knowledge of the advantages and disadvantages of high and low pressure plants.

An Air Force carpenter may be called upon to make anything from a notice-board to an aircraft propeller, or if attached to the Coastal Command, he would probably undertake repairs to all kinds of boats and boats of aircraft and marine craft.

Even a cook in the Air Force must be a specially adaptable sort of craftsman. At a time when air battles are continuous, he may be asked to provide meals for tired and hungry flying men at all times of the day. And the good cook will

improvise tasty menus for them, no matter how heavy the demands on him.

Run through the alphabetical list of draughtsmen, drivers, electricians, fabric workers, fitters and all the rest, and you'll find many trades and all of them important.

THE WEATHER MEN

Not many people, perhaps, appreciate the services which the R.A.F. receives from its meteorological staff. Yet upon the accuracy and skill of their forecasts, the success of British air operations and the safety of the airmen largely depends.

Observations of atmospheric pressure and temperature, wind, cloud, weather, and visibility must be regularly made, while their duties consist, as well, of the plotting of weather maps, computing sets of pilot balloon observations, taking charge of self-recording instruments and having complete knowledge of such technical instruments as anemographs, barographs, thermographs, pluviographs, and hygrographs.

There are medical and dental staff, photographers—some of whom are always occupied in making prints of aerial photographs taken over enemy territory—jiggers, storekeepers, tailors, turners, and wireless operators.

All these ground workers are among those needed to keep the machines in the air. Unspectacular though their efforts may be, without their help tales of heroism in the air would never be told. There is a vital contribution to the Empire's

FOR THE 1 MAN IN 7 WHO SHAVES EVERY DAY

A Special Shave Cream—It's Not a Soap, Needs No Brush!

Daily shaving leaves many men's faces
raw and sensitive. Yet, because of his business and social status, one out of every 7 men must shave every day.

To meet this condition, Williams
has now developed GLIDER—a special
cream for daily shavers. With no
soap base, it's a complete departure
from ordinary shave creams. No
brush. No lather. Not sticky or greasy.

A superabundance of moisture is contained in this rich cream. It won't dry on your face. Applied with
the fingers, it quickly softens each whisker. A protective layer is formed over which your razor glides. Off comes each hair at the base without scraping. Like a cold cream, Glider
helps keep your skin smooth all day.
Glider is the result of nearly 100
years' experience in making fine
shaving preparations.

Whitehall Jargon Attacked

'Official English'

Mr. Churchill, attacking the jargon at Whitehall, invites his colleagues and the heads of Civil Service departments to condense their reports and avoid "of-ficialese."

He quills at such phrases as: "It is also of importance to bear in mind the following considerations..." or "Consideration should be given to the possibility of carrying into effect..."

Mr. A. P. Herbert, M.P., who still wages his Word War, calls jargon
"Jungle English" and "Ribbon-Writing." Sir Arthur Quiller-Couch, another hater of woolly abstractions and pompous periphrases, once re-moulded Hamlet's soliloquy in an exercise beginning: "To be, or the contingency? Whether the former or the latter be preferable would seem to admit of some difference of opinion."

'Officialese'

Here are examples of the "of-ficialese" which alarms the Prime Minister:

"Pending this it is suggested that, having regard to the structure of industry in—resulting in the whole almost invariably gaining or suffering from the condition of the key industries, it might be considered reasonable to give a certain measure of priority in shipbuilding and possibly other orders to the—area; any such action, it is believed, being likely to provide a greater proportional alleviation of the very serious situation existing than in almost any other district."

"The unity of view of the participants in the conversations has been established regarding the exceptional importance at the present time of an all-embracing collective organisation of security of the basis of the indivisibility of peace."

"The Minister sees no reason to question the view of the Council that, having regard to the fact that the site is closely adjacent to a road junction and that vehicles must enter or leave the premises in reverse gear or alternatively stand on the highway, the increase in traffic to and from the premises, consequent upon the erection of the pumps, is likely to be detrimental to public safety."

Now Whitehall must search instead for the "short expressive phrase."
Mr. Churchill says that the discipline of setting out the real points concisely will help clearer thinking.
We wait anxiously for officials to "give consideration to the possibility of putting into immediate practice the recommendations with regard to verbiage stressed by the Prime Minister in a memorandum which has lately been circulated for scrutiny to responsible authorities in the departments concerned."

Or words to that effect.

LASHED TRAWLER TO EACH SIDE OF STEAMER

How two armed trawlers, made fast one each side of a damaged steamer, brought her to port was revealed recently.

The story is typical of the outstanding work armed trawlers are doing during the war.

Towards the end of July the steamer, of nearly 3,000 tons in ballast, was bombed and badly damaged. She was leaking and could not use her engines. Her rudder was flooded.

For more than an hour an armed trawler took the ship in tow. Then another armed trawler appeared and the R.N.V.R. lieutenant in charge, realising that the unwieldy wreck could not be towed from ahead in the ordinary way, caused the trawlers to be made fast alongside, one on each side.

The damaged steamer was then towed by this means for about four hours. It was tough and go when she filled up and sank, but at last she reached harbour and a salvage pump was put on board.

Went Back For Man

Another story of heroism is that of the armed trawler Cape Finisterre, which on August 4 was attacked by enemy planes. The first attacker was shot down into the sea, but bombs from the others knocked the gun crew off their feet and flung the gunlayer overboard.

The ship sank in about five minutes,
the crew putting off in a lifeboat.
Meanwhile, the gunlayer swam to the boat, and when it was found that the trimmer on watch was missing,
he volunteered to search for him.

He went part of the way down to the engine-room in spite of clouds of scalding steam from a burst boiler and steampipes, but the trimmer was able to claw his own way out.

One feature of the arduous mine-sweeping service is the length of time spent at sea. The average number of days a month spent on duty
by one of them, a former paddle steamer belonging to a railway company, is twenty-three, during which she covers about 1,700 miles. In a year of war she travels 21,582 miles.

Among her crew are a Metropolitan policeman, a paperhanger, an entertainer and conjurer, a writer, a stockbroker's clerk and a man from the B.B.C.'s engineering staff.

GERMAN PILOTS ARE BULLIED

Gestapo Flies to Watch Them

GERMAN airmen raiding Britain have two alternatives—to go for their objective and put up something of a show when attacked by British fighters, or... be manhandled by the Gestapo if they return to their bases.

In every formation of enemy planes there are Gestapo men so placed that they can keep an eye on the crews around them.

All machines are numbered in bold figures. Full reports of the engagement are handed in when what is
have slashed it, gets home.

Any crew that has "funked" gets a bad "mention in dispatches" and is dealt with accordingly.

These terror tactics have just come to the knowledge of the R.A.F., a senior R.A.F. officer said recently.

The enemy seem to have a good idea of what British troops and the Home Guard are ready to hand out to parachutists—but they are taught to fear the same fate themselves.

One German pilot who was shot down and landed his machine safely on the south-east coast asked permission to go back to his plane when he was being taken away by troops.

He Expected It

An officer who escorted him back, kept his finger on his revolver trigger, just in case.

But the German was up to no tricks. To the officer's amazement he took from the cockpit a weekend case tightly packed with spare clothes, shaving kit, and other personal belongings including a thick winter overcoat. Apparently he had expected to become a guest.

In contrast was the British pilot who was shot down in the same sky battle and crashed near a pub. As he scrambled from his wrecked plane with a bullet wound in his right shoulder and his cheek laid open, he said:

"Get me a pint of mild and bitter and let me get back among those—up there."
He got his beer.

Drowsiness Problem After Raids

One of the effects of expected raids which worries many women is the day drowsiness which overcomes them. In a lecture on raid protection a doctor emphasises that this should not surprise us.

Sleep is a mental state of isolation,
and this drowsiness answers a physiological need: the body automatically protects the brain by cushioning
it in this way.

We move more slowly, make decisions with greater deliberation.

Village And Raids

How easily raids fall into their place as just another of nature's calumnies in the country, as contrasted with their stress and strain in towns.

In our village last week-end the church bells were rung (by a mistake) while seven enemy machines were brought down round the village, and yet the whole thing was seen in proportion by the villagers, who continued their accustomed occupations without a break.

Only on Sunday afternoon, at the appointed time of leisure, did they put on their hats and go up the hillsides to see the planes (one almost undamaged) that lay so close.

This is the kind of thing that the British propaganda should film and send hither to America, the slow Sunday procession of housewives with placid faces, none of them forgetting to take baskets for the blackberry and sloe harvest.

HONGKONG C. C. ANNUAL MEETING

Mr. H. R. B. Hancock And
Mr. T. E. Pearce Elected
Life Members

MR. H. R. B. HANCOCK and the Hon. Mr. T. E. Pearce, two of Hongkong's most prominent cricketers of former years, were elected life members of the Hongkong Cricket Club at the Annual General Meeting held yesterday.

Mr. Hancock, re-elected President, reported a very satisfactory year, and pointed to a very sound financial position.

Presenting the report and accounts, he referred to the death of two of the Club's oldest members, Mr. P. M. Hodgson and Mr. J. D. Humphreys.

Mr. Hodgson, he said, offered to take on the duties of secretary when the Club was in low water and by his hard work and sound advice put the affairs on a sound basis. Mr. Humphreys was a very happy personality and was a great favourite with all members. He had served on the Committee and was always willing to serve on sub-committees and do what he could to promote the interests of the Club. He was a member of the interport team which visited Singapore in 1920.

Mr. Hancock also referred to the death of Mr. G. Polignac, who joined the R.A.F. on the outbreak of war and lost his life as the result of a flying accident.

The meeting closed for a short while in respect for the late members.

STATEMENT OF ACCOUNTS

Mr. Hancock continued: "The statement of accounts is a very satisfactory one. Our profit on work done in 1939-40, against $4,450.67 last year, working expenses show an increase of $1,042.50, mainly brought about by ratifying which is $1,233.43 against $219.40 last year. Sales have increased by $4,193.09 but the percentage of profit has decreased by 1.08 per cent. on sale price, the net result being an increased profit on sales of $342.62. The net profit amounts to $1,335.09, against $2,755.57, but this decrease is brought about by the decrease of $582.02 in the profit under working account and the donations to the N. C. M. Post War Fund of $1,000 and to the B.W.O.F. of $500, and a small reserve against doubtful debts of $240.10.

Welterweight Champion Of The World

In The Eyes Of The Maryland Commission

BALTIMORE, Oct. 15 (UP).—Izzy Janazzo gained a decision on points in a fifteen-round bout with the Cocoa Kid from Puerto Rico last night, winning the Maryland Athletic Commission's recognition as the world's welterweight champion.

The Maryland Commission recently withdrew its recognition of Henry Armstrong's claim to the title a few days before the negro lost the championship to Fritz Zivic. Armstrong was unanimously recognised as the world champion prior to taking the worst beating in his career and losing the title to Zivic last week.

DEMPSEY JUDGE

JACK DEMPSEY, former world heavyweight champion, acted as referee, and cast his vote for Janazzo as did one judge.

The Cocoa Kid received the vote of the second judge and many newspapermen agreed that the Kid should have gained the nod. Three thousand fans watched the bout which was a tame affair lacking a single knockdown.

Izzy used a sharp left jab and bounced around the ring, while the Kid forced the fight. Neither was ever in serious trouble. Janazzo weighed 148 pounds and the Kid exactly the same.

Baskets Beat Angels 10-4 In Navy Cup Polo Tournament

SUPERIOR COMBINATION of the Baskets triumphed over the Angels 10-4 in the second round of the Navy Cup Polo Tournament at Boundary Street yesterday. It was only in the final chukka, however, that the Baskets took full toll of their persistent attack, and scored four goals without reply.

Chattey opened the scoring in the first chukka for the Baskets with a fine hook shot after receiving from Wilson, but the Angels retaliated when Morgan capped a fine movement down field and equalised.

Baskets scored twice more in this chukka. Wilson from a penalty inward against Lewis for crossing, and later Bompas from a pass from Wilson. It was the latter, incidentally, who was constantly in the lime-light.

SECOND CHUKKA

CHATTEY all but increased the score at the opening of the second chukka, when he missed narrowly from the hit out. Then a very fine shot from Morgan was stopped by Wilson, who hit up to Bompas, who in turn permitted Wilson to score in a move on the 40-yard line.

On resumption, Morgan broke away and taking the ball into the Baskets' area reduced arrears with a fine hook shot.

World's Most Elaborate Rowing Course

TOKYO, Oct. 28 (Domei).—"Orphan" of the cancelled Twelfth Olympiad, which was scheduled to be held in Tokyo in 1940, the world's most elaborate rowing course was opened on Sunday.

Costing Yen 3,000,000, the course is 2,400 metres long, 70 metres wide and 2.5 metres deep, and draws its water through a 2-metre wide sluice gate from the Arakawa River.

Constructed partly by convict labour, the course took 200 days to complete.

Japan National Sports Meet

TOKYO, Oct. 28 (Domei).—The second day of the National Sports Meet began this morning, with twelve different games being contested at different grounds in the city. Basketball and volleyball contests as well as baseball games were played, while a mass gymnastic display was given by a large group of school girls.

An interesting contest was the bicycle race at which department store messengers, postmen, fire-brigade members and others vied for the honour of their teams.

Lewis reducing the score to 5-3 at the end of the second chukka.

THIRD CHUKKA

ANGELS attacked again at the opening of the third chukka, but had the disappointment of seeing Morgan's shot going wide, but in the succeeding struggle in Baskets' half, Lewis sent the ball between the posts to reduce the score to 5-4.

The Angels continued to attack but were ridden off the ball, and eventually Wilson ended the struggle with a grand shot from the 60-yard line to put the Baskets 6-4 in the lead.

FINAL CHUKKA

MORGAN had bad luck at the opening of the final chukka. He took the ball up from the throw-in but missed with his parting shot, and from the hit out again missed.

Baskets then came into their own and dominated play scoring four more goals, all by Wilson, who thus scored seven of the ten goals.

The teams were: Baskets—Wilson, Bompas, Chattey and Atkinson.

Angels—Morgan, Lewis, Hunt and Hancock.

How Women Aid Social Betterment

A VERY interesting address on the schemes for social betterment in which the women of England were taking an active part was given by Professor Winifred Cullis when she was the guest of honour at a reception at the Chinese Y.W.C.A. yesterday arranged by six Chinese women's organisations.

Dr. Catherine Woo, President of the Y.W.C.A., was in the chair. Others on the platform were Mrs. Wong Man, (representing the National Women's Relief Association), Mrs. Rose Tan (Hongkong Chinese Women's Soldiers' Relief Association), Mrs. Violet Chan (Chinese Women's Club), Miss Hung Mo-chiu (Hongkong Women's New Life Movement Promotion Association) and Mrs. Jade Wong Wu (Canton Y.W.C.A.).

Among those present were Mrs. N. L. Smith, Mrs. Eldon Potter, Mrs. Leo d'Almeida, Mrs. Castro, Mrs. C. G. Altmeyer, Mrs. Phyllis Harrop, Mrs. F. Dennison, Mrs. R. O. Hall, Mrs. G. A. Goodban, Mrs. H. Ching, Mrs. Li Shu-fan, Miss Shin Tak-hing, Miss Alice Kwok, Mrs. Ma Wing-chun, Mrs. Y. K. Chow, and Mrs. Luk Oi-wan.

Dr. Woo spoke of the work performed by the six organisations, and presented the visitor with reports from the bodies represented.

Prof. Cullis said she had learned, to her great pleasure, of the admirable work Chinese women had performed and congratulated them on their achievements, particularly the organisations mentioned.

Individual Aspect

Stressing the aptitude of women in interesting themselves in the individual aspect of social work, Prof. Cullis said the ultimate success of social improvement must necessarily depend on this close attention to the individual, which she compared to the work of a doctor.

She drew attention to the need of the physical and mental, as well as moral and spiritual, well-being of the individual. Of the three aspects, the question of physical health was the easiest to tackle. To have the healthy individual, however, he or she must be well-born, that is, must have healthy parents.

Prof. Cullis then proceeded to speak of the work which was being done in England in this respect. She mentioned the work of the ante-natal clinics, the infant welfare centres, the nursery schools, the school medical scheme and the National Health Insurance Scheme.

In the ante-natal clinics, the expectant mother was looked after properly, particular attention being paid to be question of good food.

Work of this kind, she said, was highly successful in the East End of London, and one aspect of the work was compared to the experimental work done in Hongkong by Mrs. Selwyn-Clarke and others with soya bean milk. Prof. Cullis stressed the importance in the diet of the mother of Vitamin B, absence of which produced all degrees of neuritis leading up to beri beri, and she explained the benefits of yeast.

Bridging the Gaps

From the time the child was born until it was about two years, its health could be looked after at the infant welfare centres, but between the ages of two and seven, before the child came under the care of the school medical officers, often its continued well-being was neglected, especially if the mother was a working woman. In England, she said, they had established nursery schools, where the gap could be bridged.

There was also a gap between the ages of 14 and 18, from the time the child left school until it came under the National Health Insurance Scheme. However, this gap had also been closed now, as the government had decreed that all children would be entitled to the benefits of the scheme from 14 years upwards.

The essential of good health was good feeding, said Prof. Cullis. Sometimes, bad feeding not only came from lack of means to buy the best food but also from lack of knowledge. She dwelt on the advantages to health, because of its contents of Vitamins of A and B of whole grain rice.

An interesting fact mentioned by Prof. Cullis was the exceptional improvement in the health of British people as shown in the Army medical returns. In 1914, she said, there was a high proportion of Class C3 men whereas there were only 12 percent, that were medically unfit for every kind of labour in 1939.

Death of Professor

Kunming, Oct. 28. A service in memory of the late Professor Pollard-Urquhart of Tsinghua University will be held under the auspices of that institution here.

Professor Pollard-Urquhart died at Loizu near Kunming on October 16 as a result of an unfortunate accident. When leaving Kunming during an air raid alarm, he was knocked down by a passing car and sustained a knee injury which proved fatal three days later. Professor Pollard-Urquhart was the brother-in-law of Mr. H. I. Pridmore-Brune, the British Consul General in Kunming. He was born at Edinburgh on May 16, 1894 and was the second son of the late Mr. W. A. Pollard-Urquhart of Castle Pollard in the county of Westmeath and was educated at Radford.

The late Mr. Pollard-Urquhart served in the Great War and came to China seventeen years ago and joined the staff of the Tsinghua University in Peking as Professor for English, language and literature.

When the University evacuated to Kunming in 1938, Professor Pollard-Urquhart accompanied it and up to the time of his death he was the Principal of the Institute for promotion of English studies under the patronage of the Rockefeller Foundation.—Reuter.

NAVAL FORCES MEET

London, Oct. 28. A message from Belgrade states that a naval action between Italy and Greece took place this morning near Corfu. The Greek Navy appears to be prepared and the morale of the Greek fighting forces is very high. Huge crowds demonstrated in the streets carrying Greek, British and Turkish flags and shouting "Down with Italy."—Reuter Bulletin.

DOCTORS AND SCIENTISTS USE HORLICKS IN HOSPITAL TESTS

RECENTLY tests were made in a great hospital on men and women who complained of always feeling tired.

It was found that these people had an excess of acid waste products in their blood during sleep.

This acid waste kept the brain and nerves 'on edge' all night even though the rest of the body was sound asleep.

But when Horlicks was given to these people last thing at night, this excess acid waste was completely neutralised. They woke refreshed, with increased energy and vitality.

to the lifeboats before the liner was completely ablaze from stem to stern.

The last people were taken off some six hours after the attack.

No Panic
In the meantime there was no panic, a number of women and children calmly obeying instructions to remain until the time to leave.

The youngest passenger was a baby boy of 11 months who was strapped to a sailor's back.

Captain Charles Spensworth, the commander, stood on the bridge encouraging his gunners as they battled with the raider until all were killed or wounded and the guns were out of action.

Captain Spensworth is believed to be among the survivors.

Rafts From Doors
The crew made rafts out of cabin doors in case the boats proved insufficient.

A member of the crew declared that the raider machine-gunned the passengers after the ship's anti-aircraft guns were out of action. He praised the women stewards who, he said, behaved marvellously.

An R.A.F. man repaired the damaged engine of a lifeboat and this was used to tug heavy lifeboats from place to place picking up survivors, while a naval officer aboard the liner led a party of men through flames and smoke to lower a lifeboat which saved many lives.

A British flying boat spotted the blazing liner and brought warships to the rescue.

Ottawa, Oct. 28.
The loss of the destroyer Marguerite (formerly H.M.S. Diana) with 140 officers and men was announced by the Naval Service Headquarters today. It is believed that 31 men were saved.

The Marguerite went down in the North Atlantic submarine zone after collision with a large merchant ship on the night of October. Neither vessel had lights.—Reuter.

United Press adds that the Marguerite is the Canadian fleet's second severe loss since the war began. In June the Fraser went to the bottom off Bordeaux when she was in a collision during the evacuation operations.

The Diana was formerly on the China Station.

ITALIANS REPULSED EVERYWHERE ACCORDING TO FRONTIER REPORTS

Graphic Stories Of First Italo-Greek Armed Clashes

By LEON KAY
"United Press" Correspondent
SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH"

PEC, OCT. 28 (UP).—REPORTS FROM THE ALBANIAN FRONTIER STATE THAT THE ITALIAN TROOPS WERE REPULSED TO-DAY WITH LOSSES IN ALMOST ALL THEIR FIRST ATTACKS ACROSS THE GREEK FRONTIER.

UNCONFIRMED REPORTS FROM THE BORDER STATE THAT ITALIAN TROOPS OCCUPIED THE TOWNS OF BOBIHO AND RADOTI BUT WITH HEAVY LOSSES, WHILE THE SAME REPORTS STATE THAT THESE TWO DEPOTS ARE THE ONLY TWO THE ITALIANS HAVE BEEN ABLE TO RETAIN.

Messages declare that 20 Greek troops were killed in a battle at the village of Labaniste near the Greek town of Kostur, where the Italians advanced for some distance into Greece, but were later forced to retire as far as the village of Kpoestica.

When hostilities started at 6 a.m. Italian troops first attempted to cross the Greek frontier in the district of Camuria, near the city of Kachipoli and to advance towards the towns of Sajai and Faltiri, but they were stopped by Greek troops after losing 15 killed and 70 wounded.

Additional frontier reports state that about 100 Italian troops were wounded in a Greek counter-attack, which forced the invaders to retire when approaching the town of Mells Opetra, after crossing the border to the northwest of Perati. The Italians are said to have concentrated about 180,000 troops in southern Albania, mostly in the Camuria district near the town of Kanispa.

During the occupation of Bobiho and Radoti 70 Italians were killed and 100 wounded. The Italians were also repulsed trying to occupy Kuraaka.

Turkish Troops Said In Action

SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH"
NEW YORK, Oct. 28 (Dome).—According to well-informed quarters and neutral sources, which are quoted by "Associated Press," Turkish troops have entered Thrace and eastern Greece in order to give assistance to Greece.

The report, however, could not gain confirmation from the Turkish Legation in New York.

R.A.F. In Middle East Will Assist Greece

LONDON, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—The planes and men sent by air and sea recently to reinforce the R.A.F. in the Middle East should not be long in joining battle with the Italians to protect Greece.

While the Italian threat to Egypt was the major motive for the increase of the R.A.F. there, Italy's latest move was clearly foreseen at the time.

The fact remains that the R.A.F. is now faced with the beginning of its sternest task—forestalling, with the British Navy and Army, the Axis drive to the east and the oil that Hitler and Mussolini need so badly. The necessity to prevent dispersal of effort which could be used to better effect elsewhere must limit the extent of the immediate help that can be given Greece in the air. All that can possibly be done at once will be done.

Navy Will Answer.
The British Navy is almost certain to be the first to answer Greece's call

Empress Of Britain's Gallant Fate; Fired All Guns To End

LONDON, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—Survivors from the Empress of Britain, landed at a western port on Sunday. They declared that the 42,500-ton liner was bombed 700 miles off Ireland on Saturday morning.

The attacking aircraft then disappeared but returned and dropped four more bombs, including incendiaries. A number of people were killed when the bombs exploded and some of the ship's lifeboats caught fire and could not be lowered. But as there was little danger of the ship sinking immediately, there was plenty of time for the passengers to take to the lifeboats. The ship was then abandoned and the survivors were rescued by a British ship.

BELGRADE, OCT. 28 (UP).—ACCORDING TO REPORTS, AS YET UNCONFIRMED, A NAVAL ACTION BETWEEN ITALIAN AND GREEK UNITS OCCURRED OFF CORFU TO-DAY.

IT IS ALSO REPORTED THAT THE BRITISH FLEET HAS LANDED TROOPS AT CRETE.

SKODA PLANT IS ATTACKED R.A.F. Score Hits

LONDON, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—The first R.A.F. bombing raid on the Skoda Works at Pilsen, Czechoslovakia, ended in the early morning to-day, which is the 22nd anniversary of the founding of the Czechoslovakian state.

The Works are one of the three biggest armament factories in the world, covering 400 acres and employing 50,000 workers. It fell into German hands at the time of the occupation in March, 1939.

When the raiders were near the target after a 750-mile flight from the English coast, visibility was so bad that they spent an hour searching for it before the great plant was seen silhouetted against the snow-covered ground.

Fire Breaks Out

Fierce fires and explosions followed the attacks, says the Air Ministry, and a pilot, who made two separate runs, bombing by the light of flares dropped by other aircraft, reported that all his heavy bombs found their mark. These were quickly followed by incendiary bombs which set fire to the damaged buildings.

This is one of the most ambitious bombing raids carried out by the R.A.F. who prepared for such long distance flights with leaflet raids in Czechoslovakia and Austria in the early days of the war.

BRITISH TROOPS LAND ON GREEK ISLAND, REPORT

Special to the "Telegraph"

It is authoritatively stated, says a "United Press" report from Belgrade, that British troops have landed on the Greek island of Cephalonia, which is situated off the west coast of Greece, dominating the entrance to the Gulf of Corinth.

According to an earlier London report, says "United Press," His Majesty King George VI and Mr. Churchill both sent messages to King George of Greece and General Metaxas the Greek Premier, promising "all the assistance in our power."

General Metaxas, says an Athens report, has appealed to Italy to treat Athens as an open city. The evacuation of 2,500 British subjects is being held up pending Italy's reply.

Italy's first gesture against Greece, however, was to bomb Athens early yesterday afternoon from more than 10,000 feet. The northern environs were attacked, and the city proper has not yet been bombed.

At 3.30 p.m. 15 Greek fighter planes and anti-aircraft guns drove off the ten bombers which were attacking the Tatoi aerodrome.

The raid on Patras was directed principally against the harbour, the Palace of Justice and the telegraph office. The population showed no signs of panic.

Yelling Crowds
The Greek General Staff announced that Italian planes flew over the aerodrome at Tatoi and dropped a number of bombs. They also bombed Eleusis where the burst of anti-aircraft fire was heard at 10 o'clock yesterday morning. The planes were not visible, but crowds in the street stood yelling and waving Greek, English, American and Turkish flags.

All schools are closed. The King's proclamation was read throughout the town over loud-speakers.

A state of siege has been declared through Greece and the mobilisation of the civilian population has been ordered.

A black-out has also been ordered in the Athens district.

The Governor of Athens has issued instructions to meet any possible suspension of food and water supplies as well as A.R.P.

Before receiving various Ministers yesterday, General Metaxas conferred with General Imou, President of Turkey, by telephone.

Second Raid Alarm
ATHENS, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—A second air raid alarm was sounded in Athens at 2.10 p.m. lasting 50 minutes. A.A. guns went into action.

Attack on Florina
LONDON, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—The main weight of the Italian attack upon Greece is being directed at Florina, a town in the north of Greece, which is a strategic point.

Italian Drive In Egypt Expected

SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH"

ROME, Oct. 28 (UP).—Italy's African war machine under the leadership of General Graziani is expected here to-night to unleash a full-powered drive against the British forces in Egypt, following reports that England is rushing ships and reinforcements to the Eastern Mediterranean to the aid of Greece.

Although all eyes are centred on developments in Greece, Italy and Albania, these quarters hold the view that the British are likely to send naval reinforcements to Greece from the naval units formerly in the Red Sea, thus facilitating Italian action in Egypt.

Despatches from Benghazi in recent days indicate preparations have been intensified for an offensive in Egypt by Italian troops, which received reinforcements of men and material during the lull in the north African operations.

With General Graziani's troops advanced to within 25 miles of Marsa Matruh, the moment is believed here to be most favourable.

Washington Fears Of Balkan War Spread

Special to the "Telegraph"

NEWARK, Oct. 28 (UP).—"There is fear on the part of some official quarters that the Italian move against Greece may not be the complete action but is merely a preliminary to more serious action."

"By a more serious situation we mean the whole Balkan picture," asserted Mr. Stephen Early, Secretary to the White House today.

President Roosevelt who arrived here to-day for a campaign tour of New York City, will soon invoke the neutrality law and freeze Greek credits in the United States, it is believed. It has been learned that the President has instructed the Secretary of the Treasury to prepare the necessary documents to freeze Greek credits.

A special telephone has been installed in the President's car and he is constantly in touch with officials in Washington. He has ordered neutrality machinery to be set at work as soon as he receives news from Greece.

New York Welcomes
SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH"
NEW YORK, Oct. 28 (UP).—Thousands gave President Roosevelt the greatest reception he has encountered since his 1936 campaign when he arrived to-day.

Crowds in lower Manhattan broke through police lines while showers of ticker tape fell from the sky.

"Lots of Luck" and "We want Roosevelt" were the themes of the welcome.

Neutrality Act Applied To Greece

U.S. Decision

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—The United States is applying the Neutrality Act to Greece.

President Roosevelt reached Newark on his way from New York to Washington to-day and is reported to have had telephone discussions with Mr. Cordell Hull, the Secretary of the Treasury and the Attorney General.

The President was to make two speeches to-night and his secretary, Mr. Stephen Early, said his plans would have to depend on whether he could get by air from Washington the necessary papers to sign to apply the Neutrality Act to Greece, freezing her credits and cash in the United States.

Mr. Cordell Hull is understood to have been instructed to draft the necessary orders.

HONGKONG TEACHERS

Tribute To Retiring President

The seventh annual general meeting of the Hongkong Teachers' Association was held at the Gloucester Hotel last Thursday, attended by a large and representative gathering of members of the local educational world.

It was reported that there had been a steady increase in membership, which reached a total of 265 last year. The chief expenditure incurred yearly went to the building up of a library and to the production of a Journal, The Path of Learning. During the year under review members had the opportunity of listening to the Director of Education, Mr. C. G. Sallis, in a series of lectures on the use of phonetics in teaching; to Professor W. Brown of Hongkong University; and to Messrs L. S. Wan and Y. P. Law, Inspectors of Schools. Two years ago the Association started a film scheme experiment whereby participating schools were able to see educational films on their own premises and at reasonable rates. This experiment proved of considerable value and had been referred to by the Director of Education in thanking the Association for its work.

Tributes were paid to the retiring President, Mr. W. L. Handyside, who was recently compelled to resign from the Education Department for health reasons. Mr. Sallis spoke of Mr. Handyside's untiring efforts and his personal regard that they would no longer be able to benefit by his enthusiasm and experience.

Professor L. Forster, Professor of Education at Hongkong University, reminded listeners that Mr. Handyside was largely responsible for the foundation of the Teachers' Association, and he moved that a suitable acknowledgment be made to him in his retirement. This was carried with acclamation.

The following office-bearers were elected for the year 1940/41. President, the Rev. Fr. R. W. Gallagher; Vice-Presidents, Miss E. Atkins, the Rev. E. W. L. Martin, Bro. Cassian, Mr. L. G. Morgan; Hon. Secretary, Mr. V. J. Dyer; Hon. Treasurer, Miss V. A. Silcock; Editor, Mrs. R. Ashton Hill; Librarian, Mr. Leung Fung-kei; Council (1940/42) Professor L. Forster, the Rev. Fr. G. Byrne, Mr. G. A. Goodban, Sister Henri, Mrs. W. F. Cheung, Mrs. Becken, Dr. F. C. Woo, Miss Pope, the Rev. F. Myhill and Bro. Honorius.

FOR LUSTROUS HAIR

Stop That Persistent COUGH

WHEN a sudden tickle in your throat makes you cough it not only annoys those around you but seriously inflames the delicate membranes of your bronchial. So, stop that persistent cough and protect your lungs by taking Peps antiseptic, breathable tablets.

Dissolved in your mouth, a Peps tablet releases rich, medicinal essences, which are carried on your breath deep into your lungs. Thus the irritated and cough-prone membranes of your throat and lungs are quickly soothed and healed. Coughing phlegm and other congestion is removed and your chest and lungs thoroughly strengthened. Take Peps for colds, chills, flu, etc.

DESTROYERS FROM AMERICA

The news that fifty American destroyers are being disposed of to Britain will come with unfeigned relief and satisfaction to those who know something of the work of the British destroyers since the beginning of the war.

Ships of round about 1,200 tons and 35 knots speed, armed with 4-inch guns, the destroyers transferred for service under the White Ensign are no longer new. They form part of the United States building programme of the last war, most of them having been completed between 1918 and 1920.

After serving with the United States fleet, they were later relegated to the reserve and kept in full running condition and ready for any emergency. Their age does not matter. Many British destroyers of similar date have done yeoman service as convoy escorts and in many other directions during the last few months.

The names of not a few of these older craft have cropped up in connection with the operations in Norway, and Holland, and during the now historic withdrawal of the British and Allied troops from Boulogne and Dunkirk.

Between 1914 and 1918 there was hardly a purpose for which destroyers were not employed at one time or another. They were used as anti-submarine screens with heavy ships of the fleet whenever they went to sea, for beating off hostile destroyers with their guns, for attacking the German fleet with their torpedoes, as well as for making protective smoke-screens. They escorted minelayers and aircraft-carriers, and towed kite balloons.

Provided with listening devices, rams and depth charges, they formed hunting flotillas for harrying the U-boats. They were used for coastal patrols, and for conveying transports and merchantmen far out at sea in every sort of weather.

In the Dardanelles they landed and embarked troops, while in the same campaign, in the Suez Canal and on the Flinders coast, they bombarded troops and gun positions ashore. They were utilized for minelaying and for minesweeping, as well as for raiding harbours in the islands of the Aegean.

It has been much the same in this war, except that their work has been more varied still, and much more onerous, with the advent of aircraft and such things as magnetic mines.

Their work at Boulogne and Dunkirk is known all over the world; but who at the beginning of this war, would have thought of ocean-going destroyers chasing the Germans through a two-hundred yard gap in a Norwegian fjord ten miles long well beyond the Arctic Circle, and varying in width between three-quarters and a quarter-of-a-mile. Yet this they did at the second battle of Narvik on April 13, to see their stricken adversaries hard up against the ice at the very end of the narrow waterway.

When this war started the British Empire possessed 185 destroyers of all ages, counting those in the Royal Australian and Canadian Navies. Some thirty-eight others were under construction or projected, of which the greater number must now be completed or nearing completion.

It can be assumed, too, that the building programme in ships of the destroyer type has been greatly enhanced since the outbreak of war, as they are needed for so many different purposes.

Their losses, thirty at the time of writing, have not been light.

It is unwise to estimate the number of British destroyers now in service, but with those required with the fleets in Home waters, the Eastern and Western Mediterranean, the Red Sea and Gulf of Aden, besides others working with the convoys of merchantmen, in submarine hunting and a variety of other purposes, it cannot be said that Britain has over-sufficient for her manifold needs.

In the last war, when, during the unrestricted submarine campaign of 1917, Britain had more than 400 vessels of the destroyer class in operation, they were spoken of by the naval historian, Sir Julian Corbett, as being "run off their legs." He went on to say that no praise could be too high for the men who endured the strain, or for those who built the no-less-sorely-tried hulls and engines.

Six American destroyers sailed from the United States to co-operate on April 24, 1917, and by July 5, there were thirty-four American destroyers working from Queenstown, some meeting the American re-inforcements from France far out at sea, others the ordinary convoys of merchantmen coming to the British Isles.

Some 400 American vessels-of-war and 81,000 officers and men of the United States Navy saw service in European waters before the armistice in November, 1918. Of the ships eighty-five were destroyers, most of them modern; but six, old and under 500 tons displacement, made the long journey of 12,000 miles from the Philippines to Gibraltar.

The value of the services of the Americans can hardly be exaggerated. Before their arrival, in an area of about 25,000 square miles in the western approaches to the English Channel, through which flowed an enormous volume of trade, there were sometimes as few as four British destroyers available for patrol work. Never were there more than fifteen.

The American building programme, embarked upon immediately after her rupture with Germany, was almost without precedent. It included 275 destroyers, 447 submarine chasers, 99 submarines, 112 "Eagle boats" intended for coastal patrol work, and 54 minesweepers, not all of which were completed by November, 1918.

The speed with which some of the destroyers were built constituted a world's record. The pre-war time for completion was between twenty months and two years, but 1917 one, the "Ward," was launched 17½ days after her keel had been laid, and commissioned in seventy days. The "Reid" was commissioned in 45½ working days from the time she was laid down.

As already indicated, the British destroyers have been hard driven since the beginning of this war. One of them steamed 52,248 miles in the first nine months; another, 25,848 miles from September 3 to December 31, 1939, during which she was at sea for 101 days out of 119.

One escort destroyer which I was on board for more than a week had done a thirteen-day trip at sea, followed by thirty-six hours in harbour for refuelling, storing and provisioning, and then another eleven days at sea. As a general rule, the longer the sea trips, the more the crew is appreciated. "—the large expenditure of effort which the care and maintenance of machinery and equipment throughout the winter months has involved. In circumstances of continuous watchkeeping.

By TAFFRAIL famous British Naval writer

That this amount of steaming has been possible is a tribute to the designers and builders, but still more so the personnel of all branches who have maintained the efficiency of their ships under the most difficult conditions, especially in view of the dilution of complements which has of necessity taken place.

And what of the future?

Britain has been spoken of as a fortress, as indeed she is, armed at every point and her armaments constantly increasing. Germany holds 2,000 miles of the coast from Norway, through Denmark, Holland, Belgium and France to the Spanish frontier.

The Royal Navy is busily engaged in home waters, on both basins of the Mediterranean, in the Red Sea and the Gulf of Aden—in any and every sea throughout the world where German or Italian activity may be manifest by surface ships, U-boats and aircraft. Never, since the beginning of its history, has the British Empire been engaged in so gigantic a struggle against the forces of evil and for the benefit of all mankind. However, it is idle to talk of Britain, the heart and nerve centre of the Empire, being in any sense a beleaguered fortress. In spite of the merchant ship losses, new construction, captures, and tonnage acquired through the German occupation of Norway, Denmark, Holland, Belgium and France, the mercantile tonnage working in the

FUNNY SIDE UP By Abner Dean

Allied cause is greater than at the beginning of the war.

Moreover, and what is more important still, neither German nor Italian merchantmen are at sea on the broad oceans, while the British merchant fleet continues its task of supplying the country with the essentials without which it cannot exist. This all comes about through the overwhelming strength of British Sea Power.

Britain may be hard pressed; but is successfully holding her own.

Neither German U-boat nor aircraft have prevented British warships from operating, or her merchantmen from sailing the seas.

Nevertheless, the acquisition of fifty most useful destroyers from the United States is a most heartening and timely addition to our naval strength, and a token of the sympathy and unity of feeling that animates the peoples of the two great Democracies of a troubled world.

VETERANS OF 1940

From RICHARD CAPELL

The green and pleasant counties comprised in the area of the Southern Command never looked more beautiful.

But this time the reason for a tour of these pastoral valleys, these headlands and beaches, was not the charm of the country, but the defences, military and naval.

Compared with Eastern England, the South was always a kind of Cinderella as regards its defences. An invasion of Eastern England was in '14-18 a possibility always taken into account, but the South was naturally considered to be practically safe.

When last June the whole face of things changed, there had been no land defences constructed in the South since the days of Napoleon III's Empire. Now, Palmerston's mid-Victorian forts may, after all, come in useful.

To see the South after the East and the North is to be struck once again with the variety of landscape and seascapes contained within our little England.

The South presents problems to the Army Commander remarkably different from those of other areas, but it also puts trump cards in his hand.

In a tour of many hundred miles it was agreeable to think, as we made our steep and winding way through Southern England one day, of the plight in which hostile tanks would surely find themselves between those high hedges, where the narrow and twisting road presents no view.

In exalted positions in the Southern Command one meets men who won or enhanced their reputations this year in France, and they are concerned with the lessons, not of '14-18 but of 1940.

The core of the Southern Army consists of troops who have fought in France and Norway, and in the eyes of the rest they are veterans. "The new soldiers hang on their words"—this was an expression I heard at one headquarters.

THREE SERVICES MEET

There is a new collaboration between the Navy, the Army and the Air Force in the defensive work in the South. "We meet," a general said to me, "at high-water mark on the beaches."

Close co-operation within the Army is a result of this year's campaign in France. The career of the British professional soldier is typically a business of guarding outposts of Empire with small forces.

But now in the organisation of the defence of England all arms are closely associated in exercises and preparation.

Again, as in the North so in the South, appreciation of the Home Guard was heard in the highest quarters.

The G.O.C.-in-C., Lt.-Gen. Auchinleck, says that since June he has been compelled to change his mind about the Home Guard. He began by being a little sceptical about their usefulness, but is glad now to allow that they may play a vital part.

The men are getting more useful every day, and the more they are asked to extend their scope the better they like it. To put it roughly: The task of the Home Guard is to hold pill-boxes and road-blocks, leaving to the Army proper the job of counter-attacking and throwing the enemy back into the sea.

HOME GUARD'S VALUE

A morning was spent with the gunners who look out to sea from the neighbourhood of one of the southern ports. They will, one feels, be disappointed if the opportunity never comes for them to fling their missiles at an invading armada.

A day or two with the Royal Navy is a heartening experience. Circumstances have brought into the Royal Navy, or into association with it, ships and men of more nationalities than it has ever embraced in all the centuries. The admiral who commands at one centre has half a League of Nations under him. He speaks in the highest terms of the Poles.

SHOTS AT PARACHUTISTS

THE Germans have been guilty of many mean and cowardly acts in this war, as in the last, but nothing has aroused more anger and contempt throughout this country than the machine-gunning of baled-out British airmen by Messerschmitt pilots.

This is partly because even in the most desperate of wars the British people believe in the practice-of-mercy-and-chivalry towards a fallen (in this case a falling) foe. It is inconceivable that any British airman would degrade the Service by shooting at a German rival who had been compelled to leap from his damaged machine. Yet, according to one writer, the position in international law is quite clear, and not exactly what the man in the street would expect it to be.

If the parachutist, having baled out, seems certain to land in enemy territory, he is deemed to be about to be captured as a matter of course. He ought not, therefore, to be fired upon. But if he be falling towards friendly territory,
he is not to be taken as one who has surrendered or will surrender, but as one who may fight again. By this reasoning it is a legitimate act of war to kill or wound him. But the majority even of German airmen probably consider the rule more honoured in the breach than in the observance, if only because, as the air war is going,
none of them knows when his turn will come to bale-out over British territory or British-controlled waters.

Certain it is that the Nazi Government, ever ready to plead humanity when this suits its purpose, would raise a great outcry were British airmen or ground forces to shoot a German parachutist. We have seen how sensitive it is about the other type of parachute specialist, the kind who "distinguished" themselves in Holland and elsewhere. The Berlin Government's opinion seems to be that these gentry, as Mr. Churchill has called them, should be received with special honour as distinguished visitors.

GREEK NEWS REEL

ATHENS

The war which has broken out between Italy and Greece brings to a head a long standing issue between these two countries.

Since 1923 Italy has coveted the Greek island of Corfu, which an Italian force attack and captured in that year. But the strategic implications of Greece in the present war, with her ports and naval bases, are far reaching. Greece occupies in the Mediterranean a position that can be either an insurmountable barrier to the Germans and Italians or a valuable asset in their drive towards the East. For instance, Allied occupation of the Ionian islands off the West Coast of Greece would weaken the present Italian control of the Adriatic. In the South Aegean Sea the occupation of the Cyclades islands, which lie athwart the main Mediterranean Black Sea trade route, would be likely to offset the Italian possessions and bases in the Dodecanese Islands.

Another strategic importance of the ports and naval bases of Greece and her islands hinges on the war in North Africa. In Italian hands these ports would menace British sea power in the Eastern Mediterranean and materially affect the balance of power in the threatened Italian attack on Egypt. Similarly British control of these ports would secure our own Eastern Mediterranean bases in Egypt and Cyprus. And the considerable advantage of use by the R.
A.F. of Greek airfields should not be overlooked. The chief handicap at present in our air operations against Italy is the distance between Italian targets and our home bases.

Along her land frontiers Greece would be most vulnerable from the north-west across the
the Struma Valley. The Al-

METAXAS

SALONIKA

CORFU

banian frontier from Lake Ok-hrida (which the Italians may now be using as a seaplane base).
To the coast on the Adriatic Sea is mountainous and very poorly served with roads.

Further, the area round Janina, the Greek town which has been threatened by invasion during the last few days, is purely an Albanian area. There are 18,700 Albanians living in Greece, mostly concentrated in the North-West. The nationalist aspirations of this minority might well lead to effective cooperation with the present revolt in Albania.

operation with the present revolt in Albania.

The diplomatic repercussions of such a conflict would necessarily involve the three other members of the Balkan Entente
—Jugo-Slavia, Rumania and Turkey.

Jugo-Slavia, with Germany on her northern frontier, will think twice before involving herself in the war. Rumania has enough problems on her hands with the Hungarian and Bulgarian claims on her territory. That leaves Turkey. By her pact with Britain Turkey bound herself to enter the war if it spread to the Eastern Mediterranean. But Turkey's attitude now largely depends on Russia's foreign policy. The recent Russo-Italian rapprochement may indicate that Turkey's turn will hold her hand.

But General Metaxas refused to renounce, under Axis pressure, the unilateral British guarantee given to Greece in April, 1939. So Britain is likely to be in the first place, the main support for Greece.

FACTS

GREEK ARMY—80,000 regulars, 500,000 war potential.

NAVY—2 old cruisers, 10 des-troysers, 8 submarines.

AIR FORCE—10 groups of 3 flights.

POPULATION—6,936,000.

MINORITIES—191,254 Turks, 81-000 Macedonians, 10,775 Bulgars.

CHIEF EXPORTS—Currants, barley, tobacco and wine. Greece also produces over 200,000 tons of iron and 132,000 tons of iron pyrites a year. Great Britain took £1,112,000 worth of currants in 1938. Value of currency in circulation £18,900,000 (notes). Exports from Great Britain to Greece in 1938 amounted to £3,751,707.

MERCHANT NAVY—1,855,000
tons; 589 steam and motor vessels.

PRINCIPAL PORTS—Piraeus, Velo, Salonica, Dede-Agatch, Nauplia.

John Metaxas, Dictator of nominal democratic Greece, came into power in 1936, and has ruled the country with an iron rod. He is 66 years old, a friend of the King both before and after the Restoration; is reputed to have strong Axis sympathies, but is in reality the most shrewd of all the Balkan statesmen.

By AN AIR CORRESPONDENT.

Behind the flying strength of the R.A.F. is a vast ground army of craftsmen and tradesmen. Without their skill and craftsmanship, the great air attacks on enemy positions, from Norway to the African deserts, would fail to find their mark.

Without their constant attention to every detail, the life of the pilot would be gravely imperilled.

These workmen have been recruited for the Air Force from all sorts of trades; there are carpenters and blacksmiths, painters and copper-smiths, electricians and motor mechanics, instrument makers and meteorological workers, butchers and cooks, store-keepers and tailors.
Among them are thousands of volunteers from the Dominions and Colonies.

Let us consider some of these men and the work they are doing. Since all of them are essential to the maintenance of the ever-expanding R.A.F., let us take them in alphabetical order.
First come the armourers—men who load and prepare guns for air fighting men who know all about ammunition and bombs. They must also know about the construction and action of bombs, the installation and checking of bomb sights, and gun for this work is a specialist in his job. He has taken an exhaustive course at an Air armament School.

The armourers and their mates also pass through a rigorous course. One slip by an armourer might cause the death of a pilot and aircraft crew.
The armourer's job, and the job of the armament officer, dates back to the Retreat from Mons of 1914, for it was during that episode of the last Great War that the Royal Flying Corps first discovered the need for competent armament officers.

TRADESMEN IN WAR

Then there is the blacksmith and welder—the man who must know how to forge a head-lamp bracket for a car, weld a steel ring to given dimensions, or a new link on a chain,
make and temper a cold chisel, forge, set and temper a spring, weld on aluminium arm to a crankcase. He must be an expert in the use and care of hydraulic valves and have knowledge of the advantages and disadvantages of high and low pressure plants.

An Air Force carpenter may be called upon to make anything from a notice-board to an aircraft propellor, or it attached to the Coastal Command, he would probably undertake repairs to all kinds of floats and boats of aircraft and marine craft.
Even a cook in the Air Force must be a specially adaptable sort of craftsman. At a time when air battles are continuous, he may be asked to provide meals for tired and hungry flying men at all times of the day. And the good cook will cause

improvise tasty menus for them, no matter how heavy the demands on him.

Run through the alphabetical list
of draughtsmen, drivers, electricians,
fabric workers, fitters and all the rest,
and you'll find many trades and all of them important.

THE WEATHER MEN

Not many people, perhaps, appreciate the services which the R.A.F.
receives from its meteorological staff.
Yet upon the accuracy and skill of their forecasts, the success of British air operations and the safety of the airmen largely depends.

Observations of atmospheric pressure and temperature, wind, cloud, weather and visibility must be regularly made, while their duties consist, as well, of the plotting of weather maps, computing sets of pilot balloon observations, taking charge of self-recording instruments and having complete knowledge of such technical instruments as anemographs, barographs, thermographs, ptychog-raphs, and hygrographs.

There are medical and dental staff, photographers—some of whom are always occupied in making prints of aerial photographs taken over enemy territory—riggers, storekeepers, tal-lors, turners, and wireless operators.
All these ground workers are among those needed to keep the machines in the air. Unspectacular though their efforts may be, without their help tales of heroism in the air would never be told. There is a vital contribution to the Empire's cause.

FOR THE 1 MAN IN 7 WHO SHAVES EVERY DAY

A Special Shave Cream—It's
Not a Soap, Needs No Brush!

Daily shaving is a most annoying task and sensitive. Yet, because of his business and social status, one out of every 7 men must shave every day.

To meet this condition, Williams
has now developed GLIDER—a special
cream for daily shavers. With no
soap base, it's a complete departure from ordinary shave creams. Off
brush. No lather. Not sticky or greasy.

A superabundance of moisture is contained in this rich cream. It won't dry on your face. Applied with
the fingers, it quickly softens each
whisker. A protective layer is formed
over which your razor glides. Off
comes each hair at the base without scraping. Like a cold cream, Glider
helps keep your skin smooth all day.
Glider is the result of nearly 100
years' experience in making fine
shaving preparations.

TURKEY AND ITALY

No State Of War
Exists Yet

SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH"
ISTANBUL, Oct. 28
(UP).—Turkish Government officials this afternoon
categorically declared that no state of war exists between Turkey and Italy.

Metaxas Busy

ATHENS, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—
It is officially stated that General Metaxas, the Greek
Premier, had a 15-minute telephone talk with the Turkish
President to-day.

General Metaxas also received
the British, Yugo-Slav and Turkish Ministers.

Yugo-Slavia To Be Neutral

LONDON, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—
Primary reports from Belgrade say that Yugo-Slavia will probably adopt
a neutral attitude while no general
mobilisation has been ordered in Bulgaria although the country's first
A.R.P. measures have been announced.

Bulgaria Also

LONDON, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—Our policy to-day is one of neutrality and definitely there is no reason to believe that it will change, declared a Bulgarian diplomat in London.

U.S. Satisfaction

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—
Satisfaction is expressed here that Britain intends rapidly to fulfil the terms of her guarantee to Greece.
It is also hoped that the extension
of hostilities will force the Italian
Fleet into the open.

Shock To Egyptians

CAIRO, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—Informed political circles here were not surprised by the Italian invasion of Greece but the news came as a shock
to ordinary Egyptians.

Faith in Mussolini's word is no
longer felt by the Egyptians or foreigners. It is recalled that on Italy's entry into the war Mussolini stressed that he had no designs on Yugo-Slavia, Switzerland, Egypt or Greece.

No Formal Statement

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—
After a conference with Mr. Cordell
Hull, the Secretary of State, the Greek Minister stated that he had not presented formal notice that a state of war existed with Italy.

He said general views on the Greek situation were exchanged at the conference.

Moscow Attitude

SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH"
MOSCOW, Oct. 28 (UP).—Radio
Moscow reported the developments
in Greece with all appearances of giving equal prominence to the communications from London, Rome and Athens.

Nothing is known here regarding unconfirmed Balkan reports that Russia had sent a representation to
the Axis Powers against any extension of the war in the Balkans. Such representation is considered most unlikely.

Boris Temporises

SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH"
SOFIA, Oct. 28 (UP).—King Boris,
addressing Parliament, said there was
"reason to look to Bulgaria's future calmly." He stressed friendship for the Axis Powers and declared that every Bulgarian is determined to defend the independence of his country.

"The traditional ties have been re-established between Bulgaria and Rumania. Our relations with Yugo-Slavia and Turkey are in the spirit of agreements which binds us with them.
"With the Soviet Union, our political and economic relations continue to develop favourably," he said.

Weekly Summary—Battle Of Britain Enemy Lose Two Planes To One Many More Pilots

LONDON, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—It is stated authoritatively that German losses in aircraft over Britain during the week ending midnight, Oct. 26, totalled 39 of which at least eight were shot down at night.

British losses were 18 and nine pilots.

LONDON, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—
Enemy air activity over Great Britain to-day has been on a very limited scale, a few bombs being dropped at scattered points in East Anglia and south-east England.

Casualties appear to be very few,
states an Air Ministry communique,
and very little damage has been done.

Many Churches Suffer

LONDON, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—The
Bishop of London stated at the Diocesan Conference that 32 London
churches had been destroyed or rendered unusable by air raids; 47 had been seriously damaged and very many more had been less seriously damaged.

Four Alarms

LONDON, Oct. 28 (UP).—The fourth air raid alarm was sounded at 4.30 p.m. All previous alarms were without incident.

Down In Sea

LONDON, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—Five
German airmen came ashore in a rubber boat on Sunday night between two East Anglian coast villages.

Night Raids Start

LONDON, Oct. 28 (UP).—At 8.40
p.m. a heavy anti-aircraft barrage
started just after the first night alarm.
Gunfire flashes and the sparkle of bursting shells was accompanied by the drone of planes apparently trying to force their way into the London
area singly.

The Air Ministry communique
states that four German planes were shot down to-day. In the London
area there were four daylight alarms
which were generally without incident. To-night, raiders were over Wales and the Midlands and northeast Scotland.

Names of New French Council of Defence

LONDON, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—The names of members of the Council of Defence of the French Empire appointed by General
Charles de Gaulle are now announced as follows:

General Georges Catroux, former Governor-General of Indo-China;
Vice-Admiral Emile Muselier, C.
in-C. of the Free French Navy and Air Force;

General de Larmont, Governor-General of Senegal and Equatorial
Africa;

M. Eboeue Berea, Governor-General
of Chad territory;

General Uot, Governor-General of French establishments in the Pacific;

General Sica, of the Army Medical Corps in Africa;

Professor Rene Cassin, former President of the Ex-Servicemen's
Association;

Reverend Father Thierry Argonne-
lleu;

Colonel Le Clare, Commissioner of the French Cameroons.

Italy Not Deceived

NEW YORK, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—
The Fascist reformation of France
has merely been outlined without any
"consenting echo" from the people
of France who cling hopefully to British resistance and admire the rebel, de Gaulle, says the "Herald-Tribune" correspondent in Rome
quoting the "Popolo d'Italia."

The Paris correspondent of Rome
newspapers says that de Gaulle has achieved great popularity and Frenchmen long for revenge and the failure of the Italian campaign.

CHINESE SUCCESS IN SOUTH Lungchow Is Recaptured.

Lungchow, Oct. 28, (Central News).—Sweeping successes have been scored by the Chinese in their general offensive in south Kwangsi.

Lungchow, important communication centre on the Kwangsi-French border was recaptured by a Chinese column yesterday by a Chinese column took Mingkiang, south-west of Lungchow, Suifu on the Tao River was also regained at noon.

On the Pingyang-Nanning highway
the Chinese re-occupied Santong, Chinyuling and Tatowling. Japanese aircraft dumped tons of explosives upon the Chinese and Japanese reinforcements launched counter-attacks
at Kanku, Yiling and Tenghsiang, but failed to check the Chinese on-rush.

Planes Raid Kunming

Kunming, Oct. 29, (Central News).
Thirteen Japanese planes raided Kunming yesterday morning, dumping bombs in the suburbs. About twenty civilians were killed and wounded and over ten houses demolished.

Frau Nazi Refuses To Buy Bacon

Because of the lack of feeding stuffs, so many pigs have been slaughtered in Denmark that a "Buy More Bacon" campaign has been started in Germany.

German women, however, have not seen bacon for so many years that they do not know how to cook it, and the campaign has not been successful.

The Two Dictators Confer At Florence

Three-Hour Meeting

SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH"
ROME, Oct. 28 (UP).—It is officially reported that the talks
between Hitler and Mussolini ended shortly before 2 o'clock
this afternoon.

The conversations started
about 11 o'clock in the morning.
After they had finished,
Hitler, Mussolini, Count Ciano,
von Ribbentrop, General Kietel
and Ambassador von Mackensen
had lunch together.

"Reuter" says that Hitler left Florence for Germany at 6 p.m. and quotes a Stockholm report that the German dictator may shortly meet
King Leopold of the Belgians.

Peregrinating Laval

LONDON, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—M.
Laval has left for Paris for further discussion with the Germans and he will be joined by General Huntzinger,
the Vichy Minister of War.

This morning, following a meeting
of the Cabinet and the Council of Ministers, a decree was issued forbidding Frenchmen to listen to British broadcasts in public places.

Machiavellian Moves

FLORENCE, Oct. 28 (UP).—The shadow of Machiavelli hovered over
a green baize table on which Mussolini and Hitler drafted plans for joint Axis action in Europe during a conference lasting two and a half hours in the fourteenth century
Palazzo Vecchio at Florence to-day.

A huge marble bust of Machiavelli,
who is Mussolini's favourite author,
stood directly behind the Italian Dictator in the Hall of Clement VII
during the conference, which was attended by the Italian and German Foreign Ministers.

For the first time in 18 years the Anniversary of the Fascist March on Rome missed the front page to-day
as the Italian press splashed reports
of the Florence meeting.

Triumphal March

Hitler's passage through the Brenner
Pass to Florence was similar to a triumphal march with thousands of people packing railway trucks and cheering their German ally as never before. The Fuehrer received a royal welcome upon his arrival at Cologne
at 9.30 a.m. when the cousin of King Victor, the Duke of Bergham, boarded
the special train and presented Italy's official welcome.

Mussolini departed at 6 p.m. for an unknown destination, presumably Rome, and Hitler left for Germany
by train at 5.55 p.m. to-day.

Losses And Thefts

Mr. G. H. Cuthill, of 28 Austin Avenue, reports that between October 22 and 28, articles of clothing were stolen from his residence.
The property lost is valued at $192.

Mr. Tate, of 85 Waterloo Road, lost a clock and clothing valued in all at $107 when a thief entered his flat through an open window between 1 and 5 a.m. yesterday.

Mr. Betts, of 5 and 7 Belfran Road, lost a fan and other articles valued at $60 when his house was also entered.

A.R.P. Wardens Called Out

All members of the Hongkong
Corps of Air Raid Wardens are called out for service as from 5 p.m. to-day
until further orders.

This is announced in a Government Gazette Extraordinary issued
this morning.

The two-day black-out exercises
will commence to-day from sunset.

Director's Notice

Those Wardens whose application
to remain in the Colony has been refused by the Evacuation Advisory Committee or who have received notice to evacuate, will not be mobilized during the Blackout Exercise to-night and to-morrow night.

Japanese Sailors Operate Near H.K.

Leung Shing, master of a boat, reports to the police that about 3 a.m.
yesterday whilst sailing about one-third of a mile from Lintin Island, his craft was attacked by a Japanese motor boat.

The Japanese boarded his junk
and dumped the cargo of sea grass, valued at $820, overboard.
The crew of the boat, along with the crews of two other junks which were sailing together, were put into a sampan, given oars and rudder, and told to row away. The Japanese then towed the junks away to an unknown destination.

HONGKONG C. C. ANNUAL MEETING

Mr. H. R. B. Hancock And
Mr. T. E. Pearce Elected
Life Members

MR. H. R. B. HANCOCK and the Hon. Mr. T. E. Pearce, two of Hongkong's most prominent cricketers of former years, were elected life members of the Hongkong Cricket Club at the Annual General Meeting held yesterday.

Mr. Hancock, re-elected President, reported a very satisfactory year, and pointed to a very sound financial position.

Presenting the report and accounts, he referred to the death of two of the Club's oldest members, Mr. P. M. Hodgson and Mr. J. D. Humphreys.

Mr. Hodgson, he said, offered to take on the duties of secretary when the Club was in low water and by his hard work and sound advice put the affairs on a sound basis. Mr. Humphreys was blessed with a very happy personality and was a great favourite with all members. He had served on the Committee and was always willing to serve on sub-committees and do what he could to promote the interests of the Club. He was a member of the interport team which visited Singapore in 1926.

Mr. Hancock also referred to the death of Mr. G. Polglase, who joined the I.A.F. on the outbreak of war and lost his life as the result of a flying accident.

The meeting stood for a short while in respect for the late members.

STATEMENT OF ACCOUNTS

Mr. Hancock continued: The statement of accounts is a very satisfactory one. Our profit on working is $5,000.05, against $0,450.07 last year. Working expenses show an increase of $1,042.00, mainly brought about by retarding which is $1,233.43 against $210.40 last year. Sales have increased by $4,102.09 but the percentage of profit has decreased by 1.80 per cent. on sale price, the net result being an increased profit on sales of $342.02. The net profit amounts to $1,330.00, against $2,755.57, but this decrease is brought about by the decrease of $582.02 in the profit under working account and the donation of $1,000 and to the B.V.O.F. of $500, and a small reserve against doubtful debts of $240.19.

Welterweight Champion Of The World

In The Eyes Of The Maryland Commission

BALTIMORE, Oct. 15 (UP).—Izzy Janazzo gained a decision on points in a fifteen-round bout with the Cocoa Kid from Puerto Rico last night, winning the Maryland Athletic Commission's recognition as the world's welterweight champion.

The Maryland Commission recently withdrew its recognition of Henry Armstrong's claim to the title a few days before the negro lost the championship to Fritz Zivic. Armstrong was unanimously recognised as the world champion prior to taking the worst beating in his career and losing the title to Zivic last week.

DEMPSEY JUDGE JACK DEMPSEY, former world heavyweight champion, acted as referee, and cast his vote for Janazzo as did one judge.

The Cocoa Kid received the vote of the second judge and many newspapermen agreed that the Kid should have gained the nod. Three thousand fans watched the bout which was a tame affair lacking a single knockdown.

Izzy used a sharp left jab and bounced around the ring, while the Kid forced the fight. Neither was ever in serious trouble. Janazzo weighed 148 pounds and the Kid exactly the same.

Baskets Beat Angels 10-4 In Navy Cup Polo Tournament

SUPERIOR COMBINATION of the Baskets triumphed over the Angels 10-4 in the second round of the Navy Cup Polo Tournament at Boundary Street yesterday. It was only in the final chukka, however, that the Baskets took full toll of their persistent attack, and scored four goals without reply.

Chattey opened the scoring in the first chukka for the Baskets with a fine hook shot after receiving from Wilson, but the Angels retaliated when Morgan capped a fine movement down field and equalised.

Baskets scored twice more in this chukka. Wilson from a penalty award against Lewis for crossing, and later Bompas from a pass from Wilson. It was the latter, incidentally, who was constantly in the lime-light.

SECOND CHUKKA

CHATTEY all but increased the score at the opening of the second chukka, when he missed, narrowly from the hit out. Then a very fine shot from Morgan was stopped by Wilson, who hit up to Bompas, who in turn permitted Wilson to score in a melee on the 40-yard line.

On resumption, Morgan broke away and taking the ball into the Baskets' area reduced arrears with a fine hook shot.

Atkinson got away following the throw-in, but his shot was stopped by Lewis, whose clearance, however, was intercepted by Wilson who enabled Bompas to score.

Led 5-2, the Angels instituted a great attack which culminated in

World's Most Elaborate Rowing Course

TOKYO, Oct. 28 (Domei).—"Orphan" of the cancelled Twelfth Olympiad, which was scheduled to be held in Tokyo in 1940, the world's most elaborate rowing course was opened on Sunday.

Costing Yen 3,000,000, the course is 2,400 metres long, 70 metres wide and 2.5 metres deep, and draws its water through a 8-metre wide sluice gate from the Arakawa River.

Constructed partly by convict labour, the course took 200 days to complete.

Japan National Sports Meet

TOKYO, Oct. 28 (Domei).—The second day of the National Sports Meet began this morning, with twelve different games being contested at different grounds in the city. Basketball and volleyball contests as well as baseball games were played, while a mass gymnastic display was given by a large group of school girls. An interesting contest was the bicycle race at which department store messengers, postmen, fire-brigade members and others vied for the honour of their teams.

Lewis reducing the score to 5-3 at the end of the second chukka.

THIRD CHUKKA

ANGELS attacked again at the opening of the third chukka, but had the disappointment of seeing Morgan's shot going wide, but in the succeeding struggle in Baskets' half, Lewis sent the ball between the posts to reduce the score to 5-4.

The Angels continued to attack but were ridden off the ball, and eventually Wilson ended the struggle with a grand shot from the 60-yard line to put the Baskets 6-4 in the lead.

FINAL CHUKKA

MORGAN had bad luck at the opening of the final chukka. He took the ball up from the throw-in but missed with his parting shot, and from the hit out again missed.

Baskets then came into their own and dominated play scoring four more goals, all by Wilson, who thus scored seven of the ten goals.

The teams were:
Baskets.—Wilson, Bompas, Chattey and Atkinson.
Angels.—Morgan, Lewis, Hunt and Hancock.

IN DARKEST HAMPSHIRE

"Is my bath ready, Hawkins?"

"Not quite, Sir. They're just darning it."

"A gesture of old world courtesy, no doubt, but was it really necessary?"

"Very necessary indeed, Sir, as it happens to be a hip-bath which has lain some years in the coach-house. His Lordship rarely entertains."

"His Lordship's notions of hospitality are not of this century. He seemed to think he had a sacred duty to lay me low beneath the table. I marvel that I'm here to tell the tale."

"Yet in some ways His Lordship is well abreast of modern thought. This bottle of Raud's Lemon Juice, Sir, in your room..."

"Placed there by His Lordship's own hand, Hawkins. And a very refreshing drink following upon a one-sided battle with his Lordship's domestics."

"Yes, Sir, and Raud's has still further virtues. It is justly renowned for annihilating the after-effects of alcohol, ungenerally known as 'mornings after.'"

PROF. WINFRED CULLIS

How Women Aid Social Betterment

A VERY interesting address on the schemes for social betterment in which the women of England were taking an active part was given by Professor Winfred Cullis when she was the guest of honour at a reception at the Chinese Y.W.C.A. yesterday arranged by six Chinese women's organisations.

Dr. Catherine Woo, President of the Y.W.C.A., was in the chair. Others on the platform were Mrs. Wong Man, (representing the National Women's Relief Association), Mrs. Hsieh Tan (Hongkong Chinese Women's Relief Association), Mrs. Violet Chan (Chinese Women's Club), Miss Hung Mo-chiu (Hongkong Women's New Life Movement Promotion Association) and Mrs. Jade Wong Wu (Canton Y.W.C.A.).

Among those present were Mrs. N. L. Smith, Mrs. Eldon Potter, Mrs. Leo d'Almeida, C. Castro, Jr., Mrs. C. G. Albaster, Miss Phyllis Harrop, Mrs. E. Dennison, Mrs. R. O. Hall, Mrs. G. A. Goodban, Mrs. H. China, Mrs. Li Shu-fun, Miss Shin Pak-hing, Miss Alice Kwok, Mrs. M. Wing-chun, Mrs. Y. K. Chow, and Mrs. Luk Oi-wan.

Dr. Woo spoke of the work performed by the six organisations, and presented the visitor with reports from the bodies represented.

Prof. Cullis said she had learned, to her great pleasure, of the admirable work Chinese women had performed, and congratulated them on their achievements, particularly the organisations mentioned.

Individual Aspect
Stressing the attitude of women in interesting themselves in the individual aspect of social work, Prof. Cullis said the ultimate success of social improvement must depend on this close attention to the individual, which she compared to the work of a doctor.

She drew attention to the need of the physical and mental, as well as moral and spiritual well-being of the individual. Of the three aspects, the question of physical health was the easiest to tackle. To have the healthy individual, however, he or she must be well-born, that is, must have healthy parents.

Prof. Cullis then proceeded to speak of the work which was being done in England in this respect. She mentioned the work of the ante-natal clinics, the infant welfare centres, the nursery schools, the school medical scheme and the National Health Insurance Scheme.

UNDER TWO FLAGS—British and American flags cover coffin of Pilot Officer William Fiske, first American flier to die in Britain's service. Scene is in Boxgrove, Sussex, England. Fiske was wed to former Lady Warwick.

In the ante-natal clinics, the expectant mother was looked after properly, particular attention being paid to be question of good food.

Work of this kind, she said, was highly successful in the East End of London, and one aspect of the work was compared to the experimental work done in Hongkong by Mrs. Selwyn-Clarke and others with soya bean milk. Prof. Cullis stressed the importance in the diet of the mother of Vitamin B, absence of which produced all degrees of neuritis leading up to beri beri, and she explained the benefits of yeast.

Bridging the Gaps
From the time the child was born until it was about two years, its health could be looked after at the infant welfare centres, but between the ages of two and seven, before the child came under the care of the school medical officers, often its continued well-being was neglected, especially if the mother was a working woman. In England, she said, they had established nursery schools, where the gap could be bridged.

There was also a gap between the ages of 14 and 18, from the time the child left school until it came under the National Health Insurance Scheme. However, this gap had also been closed now, as the government had decided that all children would be entitled to the benefits of the scheme from 14 years upwards.

The essential of good health was good feeding, said Prof. Cullis. Sometimes, bad feeding not only came from lack of means to buy the best food but also from lack of knowledge.

She dwelt on the advantages to health, because of its contents of Vitamins A and B of whole grain rice.

An interesting fact mentioned by Prof. Cullis was the exceptional improvement in the health of British people as shown in the Army medical returns. In 1914, she said, there was a high proportion of Class C3 men whereas there were only 12 per cent, that were medically unfit for every kind of labour in 1939.

Death of Professor

Kunming, Oct. 28.
A service in memory of the late Professor Pollard-Urquhart of Tsinghua University will be held under the auspices of that institution here.

Professor Pollard-Urquhart died at Louisa near Kunming on October 10 as a result of an unfortunate accident. When leaving Kunming during an air raid alarm, he was knocked down by a passing car and sustained a knee injury which proved fatal three days later. Professor Pollard-Urquhart was the brother-in-law of Mr. H. I. Pringle-Burns, the British Consul General in Kunming. He was born at Edinburgh on May 16, 1894 and was the second son of the late Mr. W. A. Pollard-Urquhart of Castle Pollard in the county of Westmeath and was educated at Rindford.

The late Mr. Pollard-Urquhart served in the Great War and came to China seventeen years ago and joined the staff of the Tsinghua University in Peking as Professor for English, language and literature.

When the University evacuated to Kunming in 1938, Professor Pollard-Urquhart accompanied it and up to the time of his death he was the Principal of the Institute for promotion of English studies under the patronage of the Rockefeller Foundation.—Reuter.

RECENTLY tests were made in a great hospital on men and women who complained of always feeling tired.

It was found that these people had an excess of acid waste products in their blood during sleep.

This acid waste kept the brain and nerves on edge all night even though the rest of the body was sound asleep.

But when Horlicks was given to these people last thing at night, this excess acid waste was completely neutralised. They woke refreshed, with increased energy and vitality.

pers directed against Florina, near the principal pass leading out of the Albanian mountains. Greek troops are retreating stubbornly all along the line and have even advanced at one point into Albania.

The Italians also appear to be making a second thrust towards Epirus.

Italian troops in Albania, about 100,000, are equipped with 250 tanks.

Comparative Strengths
LONDON, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—The Italians have now in Albania ten or eleven divisions and some auxiliary troops numbering 200,000 altogether. "Reuter" learns in authoritative quarters in London.

Foodstuffs and communications have been prepared in order to avoid reliance on sea communications and it is known that there has been considerable road construction near the frontier in readiness for an advance. The biggest concentration of troops is at Argyrocastro and the second largest at Koritza.

Double Advance
It would, therefore, appear that the Italians are planning a double advance, the first along a line parallel to the coast and to the west of Janina with that town as the main objective, and the second from Koritza towards Salonika.

The Janina route offers few natural difficulties and it is believed will be less strongly defended, whereas the advance from Koritza would encounter mountain barriers and the Greek Army's main defence line.

On the other hand it would constitute a more formidable threat to Greece. The Greek land army is a competent fighting force and likely to give a good account of itself, but it suffers from a shortage of modern equipment while the Greek air force is weak in numbers.

to the lifeboats before the liner was completely ablaze from stern to stern.

The last people were taken off some six hours after the attack.

No Panic
In the meantime there was no panic, a number of women and children calmly obeying instructions to remain until the time to leave.

The youngest passenger was a baby boy of 11 months who was strapped to a sailor's back.

Captain Charles Sapsworth, the commander, stood on the bridge encouraging his gunners as they battled with the raider until all were killed or wounded and the guns were out of action.

Captain Sapsworth is believed to be among the survivors.

Rafts From Doors
The crew made rats out of cabin doors in case the boats proved insufficient.

A member of the crew declared that the raider machine-gunned the passengers after the ship's anti-aircraft guns were out of action. He praised the women stewards who, he said, behaved marvellously.

An R.A.F. man repaired the damaged engine of a lifeboat and this was used to tug heavy lifeboats from place to place picking up survivors, while a naval officer aboard the liner led a party of men through flames and smoke to lower a lifeboat which saved many lives.

A British flying boat spotted the blazing liner and brought warships to the rescue.

GOVERNOR ENTERTAINED

LOSS OF DESTROYER Formerly On China Station

Ottawa, Oct. 28.
The loss of the destroyer Marguerite (formerly H.M.S. Diana) with 140 officers and men was announced by the Naval Service Headquarters today. It is believed that 31 men were saved.

The Marguerite went down in the North Atlantic submarine zone after collision with a large merchant ship on the night of October. Neither vessel had lights.—Reuter.

United Press adds that the Marguerite is the Canadian fleet's second reverse loss since the war began. In June the Fraser went to the bottom off Bordeaux when she was in a collision during the evacuation operations. The Marguerite was the most recently commissioned destroyer in the Canadian Navy and was turned over by Britain to replace the Fraser. Only 31 are known to have been saved.

ITALIANS REPULSED EVERYWHERE ACCORDING TO FRONTIER REPORTS

Graphic Stories Of First Italo-Greek Armed Clashes

By LEON KAY
"United Press" Correspondent
SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH"

PEC, OCT. 28 (UP).—REPORTS FROM THE ALBANIAN FRONTIER STATE THAT THE ITALIAN TROOPS WERE REPULSED TO-DAY WITH LOSSES IN ALMOST ALL THEIR FIRST ATTACKS ACROSS THE GREEK FRONTIER.

UNCONFIRMED REPORTS FROM THE BORDER STATE THAT ITALIAN TROOPS OCCUPIED THE TOWNS OF BOBIHO AND RADOTI BUT WITH HEAVY LOSSES, WHILE THE SAME REPORTS STATE THAT THESE TWO DEPOTS ARE THE ONLY TWO THE ITALIANS HAVE BEEN ABLE TO RETAIN.

Messages declare that 20 Greek troops were killed in a battle at the village of Labaniste near the Greek town of Kostur, where the Italians advanced for some distance into Greece, but were later forced to retire as far as the village of Kpoestica.

When hostilities started at 6 a.m. Italian troops first attempted to cross the Greek frontier in the district of Camuria, near the city of Kachipoli and to advance towards the towns of Sajal and Fatiri, but they were stopped by Greek troops after losing 15 killed and 70 wounded.

Additional frontier reports state that about 100 Italian troops were wounded in a Greek counter-attack, which forced the invaders to retire when approaching the town of Melis Opetru, after crossing the border to the northwest of Perati.

The Italians are said to have concentrated about 180,000 troops in southern Albania, mostly in the Camuria district near the town of Kani-pu.

During the occupation of Bobiho and Radoti 70 Italians were killed and 180 wounded. The Italians were also reported trying to occupy Kusaika.

Athens' Five Raid Alarms
By Ben Ames

"UNITED PRESS" CORRESPONDENT
ATHENS, Oct. 28 (UP).—Three-motored bombing planes swooped over Patras to-day killing four and injuring 17 people who had gathered in the market place.

Shooting in the harbour escaped. The fifth air raid alarm was sounded to-day as newly-appointed A.R.P.

Official Greek Despatch

Vigorous Defence

SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH"
LONDON, Oct. 28 (UP).—The second official Greek communique quoted by "Exchange Telegraph" and other news agencies reads:
"During the day Italian forces, composed of various effective units, continued to attack our forces which defended themselves vigorously in a battle which localised itself on the frontier line."

"Enemy aircraft bombed military objectives without loss. Bombs were dropped on the town of Patras and caused casualties among the civilian population."
The "Exchange Telegraph" also reported that the casualties in Athens and Patras now total 60 killed and 100 injured.

BRITAIN'S KING SENDS MESSAGE

LONDON, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—A message from King George VI to the "Greek nation and my cousin George, King of Hellenes," says:
"There are doubtless hard trials to be borne but we shall both meet them in firm faith of ultimate victory. We may hope, indeed, that we are already near the turn of the tide when the power of the aggressor will begin to ebb and our own growing might will prevail."

Wardens attempted to clear the streets of curious sightseers.

The distant rumble of a score of heavy bombs could be heard from the direction of the naval base at Salami.

From the roof of my hotel the Acropolis was silhouetted against columns of smoke.

Kotur Captured, Says Report

NEW YORK, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—It is reported from Belgrade that the Italians have captured Kotur, six miles within Greece.

It is reported from Sofia that an BRITISH LAND IN SALONIKA?

SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH"

BELGRADE, Oct. 28 (UP).—British troops are reported to have landed at Salonika, while Greek troops have crossed the Albanian frontier and occupied 28 miles of countryside.

Reliable reports state that Italian planes have bombed Corinth and Kesselo, while military observers in Belgrade have officially confirmed "United Press" reports from the Albanian frontier that at the end of the first day's fighting the Italians had made practically no advance into Greece.

According to an Istanbul report it has been officially announced that Greece has not yet asked for Turkish aid. It has also been officially denied that Turkey has declared war on Italy.

Greek Penetration

A London message says that Greek troops on the northwest frontier have broken through the Italian lines at one point and have penetrated eight miles into Albania.

Reports persist that a naval action occurred between Greek and Italian units off Corfu, but they remain unconfirmed.

ALL ALBANIA IN OPEN REVOLT

Naval Action Off Corfu, Reported

SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH"

BELGRADE, OCT. 28 (UP).—ACCORDING TO REPORTS, AS YET UNCONFIRMED, A NAVAL ACTION BETWEEN ITALIAN AND GREEK UNITS OCCURRED OFF CORFU TO-DAY.

IT IS ALSO REPORTED THAT THE BRITISH FLEET HAS LANDED TROOPS AT CRETE.

Italian planes bombed the town of Kastoria in northern Greece and the two Italian planes were brought down over Athens to-day.

Italian troops, aided by a big air force, opened their assault in the district of Camuria and on the Greek town of Koniopolis, according to despatches from Pec to-day.

Further reports reaching Pec which is near the Yugo-Slavian frontier state that all Albania is in revolt, and that the Italian demands on Greece are supposed to have been precipitated by this revolt.

The trouble started when Italian troops a few days ago occupied the mountain peaks on the Greek-Albanian frontier in connection with an alleged Albanian rebellion movement.

It is stated that about 7 o'clock last night one group of rebels near Korca attacked a detachment of about 100 Italian soldiers with grenades and rifles, killing three Italians and severely wounding eight.

Simultaneously another group of rebels attacked the Albanian frontier post of Vidova where they killed two Italians and burned the frontier.

When the rebels were near the target after a 750-mile flight from the English coast, visibility was so bad that they spent an hour searching for it before the great plant was seen silhouetted against the snow-covered ground.

Fierce fires and explosions followed the attacks, says the Air Ministry, and a pilot, who made three separate runs, bombing by the light of flares dropped by other aircraft, reported that all his heavy bombs found their mark. These were quickly followed by incendiary bombs which set fire to the damaged buildings.

This is one of the most ambitious bombing raids carried out by the R.A.F. who prepared for such long distance flights with fuel tanks in the Czechoslovakian and Austria in the early days of the war.

BRITISH TROOPS LAND ON GREEK ISLAND, REPORT

Special to the "Telegraph"

It is authoritatively stated, says a "United Press" report from Belgrade, that British troops have landed on the Greek island of Cephalonia, which is situated off the west coast of Greece, dominating the entrance to the Gulf of Corinth.

According to an earlier London report, says "United Press", His Majesty King George VI and Mr. Churchill both sent messages to King George of Greece and General Metaxas the Greek Premier, promising "all the assistance in our power."

General Metaxas, says an Athens report, has appealed to Italy to treat Athens as an open city. The evacuation of 2,500 British subjects is being held up pending Italy's reply.

Italy's first gesture against Greece, however, was to bomb Athens early yesterday afternoon from more than 10,000 feet. The northern environs were attacked, and the city proper has not yet been bombed.

At 3.30 p.m. 15 Greek fighter planes and anti-aircraft guns drove off the ten bombers which were attacking the Tatol aerodrome.

The raid on Patras was directed principally against the harbour, the Palace of Justice and the telegraph office. The population showed no signs of panic.

Yelling Crowds

The Greek General Staff announced that Italian planes flew over the aerodrome at Tatol and dropped a number of bombs. They also bombed Eleusis where the burst of anti-aircraft fire was heard at 10 o'clock yesterday morning. The planes were not visible, but crowds in the street stood yelling and waving Greek, English, American and Turkish flags.

All schools are closed. The King's proclamation was read throughout the town over loud-speakers.

A state of siege has been declared throughout Greece and the mobilisation of the civilian population has been ordered.

A black-out has also been ordered in the Athens district. The Governor of Athens has issued instructions to meet any possible suspension of food and water supplies as well as A.R.P.

Before receiving various Ministers yesterday, General Metaxas conferred with General Inonu, President of Turkey, by telephone.

Second Raid Alarm

ATHENS, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—A second air raid alarm was sounded in Athens at 2.10 p.m. lasting 50 minutes. A.A. guns went into action.

Italian Drive In Egypt Expected

SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH"

ROME, Oct. 28 (UP).—Italy's African war machine under the leadership of General Graziani is expected here to-night to unleash a full-powered drive against the British forces in Egypt, following reports that England is rushing ships and reinforcements to the Eastern Mediterranean to the aid of Greece.

Although all eyes are centred on developments in Greece, Italy and Albania, these quarters hold the view that the British are likely to send naval reinforcements to Greece from the Red Sea, thus facilitating Italian action in Egypt.

Dispatches from Benghazi in recent days indicate preparations have been intensified for an offensive in Egypt by Italian troops, which received reinforcements of men and material during the lull in the north African operations.

With General Graziani's troops advanced to within 28 miles of Marsa Matruh, the moment is believed here to be most favourable.

Washington Fears Of Balkan War Spread

Special to the "Telegraph"

NEWARK, Oct. 28 (UP).—"There is fear on the part of some official quarters that the Italian move against Greece may not be the complete action but is merely a preliminary to more serious action."

"By a more serious situation we mean the whole Balkan picture," asserted Mr. Stephen Early, Secretary to the White House today.

President Roosevelt who arrived here to-day for a campaign tour of New York City, will soon invoke the neutrality law and freeze Greek credits in the United States; it is believed. It has been learned that the President has instructed the Secretary to the Treasury to prepare the necessary documents to freeze Greek credits.

A special telephone has been installed in the President's car and he is constantly in touch with officials in Washington. He has ordered neutrality machinery to be set at work as soon as he receives news from Greece.

New York Welcome

SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH"

NEW YORK, Oct. 28 (UP).—Thousands gave President Roosevelt the greatest reception he has encountered since his 1933 campaign when he arrived to-day.

Crowds in lower Manhattan broke through police lines while hordes of "lucky" fell from the sky.

"Let's get Luck" and "We want Roosevelt" were the themes of the

Sympathy With Italy

SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH"
MADRID, Oct. 28, (UP).—The new phase of Mediterranean warfare which was brought on by Italy's invasion of Greece does not affect Spain's non-belligerency status, the Foreign Office spokesman unofficially stated to-night.

Although Italian aggression alters the status quo of the Mediterranean, it is the impression of neutral observers that Spain will not be drawn into the conflict for the time being since the position in the Western Mediterranean and North Africa is unchanged.

Officials look with sympathy upon the Italian action which they feel is justified as a reprisal for yesterday's Albanian frontier violations as well as the alleged British political manoeuvres in Greece.

ABYSSINIA CAMP RAIDED

NAIROBI, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—A successful attack on a military camp in Abyssinia is announced in a communique which says that on October 26 South African aircraft attacked Maji, Abyssinia, which was bombed and machine-gunned.

Direct hits were scored on buildings, causing fires and large explosions.

Despite heavy anti-aircraft and machine-gun fire from the ground, all aircraft were unscathed.

A Dutch East Indian legion will follow shortly to join the Dutch Legion already in England.

CHINESE SUCCESS IN SOUTH Lungchow Is Recaptured

Lungchow, Oct. 28, (Central News).—Sweeping successes have been scored by the Chinese in their general offensive in south Kwangsi.

Lungchow, important communication centre on the Kwangsi-French Indo-China border, was recaptured at 5.30 a.m. yesterday by a Chinese column, while another Chinese column took Minglang, south-west of Lungchow. Sulu on the Tso River was also regained at noon.

On the Pingyang-Nanning highway the Chinese re-occupied Santang, Chinyuling and Tintowling. Japanese aircraft dumped tons of explosives upon the Chinese and Japanese reinforcements launched counter-attacks at Kanku, Yiling and Tonghsiang, but failed to check the Chinese onrush.

Planes Raid Kunming

Kunming, Oct. 29, (Central News).—Thirteen Japanese planes raided Kunming yesterday morning, dumping bombs in the suburbs. About twenty civilians were killed and wounded and over ten houses demolished.

New Offensives

CHUNGKING, Oct. 28 (Central News).—The Japanese troops in south Hunan has started a new offensive toward the western slope of the Tsinieh Mountain Range.

In north Hunan Chinese troops drove westward along the Taokou-Chinghua Railway on October 21. They broke into the Japanese-occupied coal mines at Tsiatsi and Lifeng the following morning. Japanese troops guarding the mines were annihilated.

Japanese gunboats anchored in the Yangtze River at Yoyang in north Hunan shelled Chinese positions at Lushihwan and Chungshan across the river on October 26. Chinese batteries fired back.

Japanese Sailors Operate Near H.K.

Leung Shing, master of a boat, reports to the police that about 3 a.m. yesterday wh a sailing about one-third of a mile from Lintin Island, his craft was attacked by a Japanese motor boat.

SHOTS AT PARACHUTISTS

THE Germans have been guilty of many mean and cowardly acts in this war, as in the last, but nothing has aroused more anger and contempt throughout this country than the machine-gunning of baled-out British airmen by Messerschmitt pilots.

This is partly because even in the most desperate of wars the British people believe in the practice of mercy and chivalry towards a fallen (in this case a falling) foe. It is inconceivable that any British airman would degrade the Service by shooting at a German rival who had been compelled to leap from his damaged machine. Yet, according to one writer, the position in international law is quite clear, and not exactly what the man in the street would expect it to be.

If the parachutist, having baled out, seems certain to land in enemy territory, he is deemed to be about to be captured as a matter of course. He ought not, therefore, to be fired upon. But if he be falling towards friendly territory, he is not to be taken as one who has surrendered or will surrender, but as one who may fight again. By this reasoning it is a legitimate act of war to kill or wound him. But the majority even of German airmen probably consider the rule more honoured in the breach than in the observance, if only because, as the air war is going, none of them knows when his turn will come to bale-out over British territory or British-controlled waters.

Certain it is that the Nazi Government, ever ready to plead humanity when this suits its purpose, would raise a great outcry were British airmen or ground forces to shoot a German parachutist. We have seen how sensitive it is about the other type of parachute specialist, the kind who "distinguished" themselves in Holland and elsewhere. The Berlin Government's opinion seems to be that these gentry, as Mr. Churchill has called them, should be received with special honour as distinguished visitors.

GREEK NEWS REEL

ATHENS

The war which has broken out between Italy and Greece brings to a head a long standing issue between these two countries.

Since 1923 Italy has coveted the Greek island of Corfu, which an Italian force attack and captured in that year. But the strategic implications of Greece in the present war, with her ports and naval bases, are far reaching. Greece occupies in the Mediterranean a position that can be either an insurmountable barrier to the Germans and Italians or a valuable asset in their drive towards the East. For instance, Allied occupation of the Ionian islands off the West Coast of Greece would weaken the present Italian control of the Adriatic. In the South Aegean Sea the occupation of the Cyclades Islands, which lie athwart the main Mediterranean Black Sea trade route, would be likely to offset the Italian possessions and bases in the Dodecanese Islands.

Another strategic importance of the ports and naval bases of Greece and her islands hinges on the war in North Africa. In Italian hands these ports would menace British sea power in the Eastern Mediterranean and materially affect the balance of power in the threatened Italian attack on Egypt. Similarly British control of these ports would secure our own Eastern Mediterranean bases in Egypt and Cyprus. And the considerable advantage of use by the R. A. F. of Greek airfields should not be overlooked. The chief handicap at present in our air operations against Italy is the distance between Italian targets and our home bases.

Along her land frontiers Greece would be most vulnerable from the north-west across the the Struma Valley. The Albanian frontier from Lake Okhrida (which the Italians may now be using as a seaplane base) to the coast on the Adriatic Sea is mountainous and very poorly served with roads.

Further, the area round Janina, the Greek town which has been threatened by invasion during the last few days, is purely an Albanian area. There are 18,700 Albanians living in Greece, mostly concentrated in the North-West. The nationalist aspirations of this minority might well lead to effective co-operation with the present revolt in Albania.

But General Metaxas refused to renounce, under Axis pressure, the unilateral British guarantee given to Greece in April, 1939. So Britain is likely to be, in the first place, the main support for Greece.

PIRAEUS

FACTS

GREEK ARMY—80,000 regulars, 600,000 war potential.

NAVY—2 old cruisers, 10 destroyers, 6 submarines.

AIR FORCE—10 groups of 3 flights.

POPULATION—6,936,000.

MINORITIES—191,254 Turks, 81,000 Macedonians, 16,775 Bulgars.

CHIEF EXPORTS—Currants, barley, tobacco and wine. Greece also produces over 200,000 tons of iron and 132,000 tons of iron pyrites a year. Great Britain took 21,112,000 worth of currants in 1938. Value of currency in circulation: 218,000,000 (notes). Exports from Great Britain to Greece in 1938 amounted to £3,751,707.

MERCHANT NAVY—1,855,000 tons; 589 steam and motor vessels.

PRINCIPAL PORTS—Piraeus, Volos, Salonika, Dede-Agatch, Nauplia.

John Metaxas, Dictator of nominally democratic Greece, came into power in 1936, and has ruled the country with an iron rod. He is 66 years old, a friend of the King both before and after the Restoration; is reputed to have strong Axis sympathies, but is in reality the most shrewd of all the Balkan statesmen.

MEN WHO KEEP THE PLANES FLYING

By AN AIR CORRESPONDENT.

Behind the flying strength of the R.A.F. is a vast ground army of craftsmen and tradesmen. Without their skill and craftsmanship, the great air attacks on enemy positions, from Norway to the African deserts, would fail to find their mark.

Without their constant attention to every detail, the life of the pilot would be gravely imperilled.

These workmen have been recruited for the Air Force from all sorts of trades; there are carpenters and blacksmiths, painters and copper-smiths, electricians and motor mechanics, instrument makers and meteorological workers, butchers and cooks, store-keepers and tailors. Among them are thousands of volunteers from the Dominions and Colonies.

Let us consider some of these men and the work they are doing. Since all of them are essential to the maintenance of the ever-expanding R.A.F., let us take them in alphabetical order. First come the armourers—men who load and prepare guns for air fighting men who know all about ammunition and bombs. They must also know about the construction and action of bombs, the installation and checking of bomb sights, and gun for this work is a specialist in his job. He has taken an exhaustive course at an Air armament School.

The armourers and their mates also pass through a rigorous course. One slip by an armourer might cause the death of a pilot and aircraft crew. The armourer's job, and the job of the armament officer, dates back to the Retreat from Mons in 1914, for it was during that episode of the last Great War that the Royal Flying Corps first discovered the need for competent armament officers.

TRADESMEN IN WAR

Then there is the blacksmith and welder—the man who must know how to forge a head-lamp bracket for a car, weld a steel ring to given dimensions, or a new link on a chain, make and temper a cold chisel, forge, set and temper a spring, weld an aluminium arm to a crankcase. He must be an expert in the use and care of hydraulic valves and have knowledge of the advantages and disadvantages of high and low pressure plants.

An Air Force carpenter may be called upon to make anything from a notice-board to an aircraft propeller, or if attached to the Coastal Command, he would probably undertake repairs to all kinds of floats and boats of aircraft and marine craft. Even a cook in the Air Force must be a specially adaptable sort of craftsman. At a time when air battles are continuous, he may be asked to provide meals for tired and hungry flyers men at all times of the day. And the good cook will

improvise tasty menus for them, no matter how heavy the demands on him.

Run through the alphabetical list of draughtsmen, drivers, electricians, fabric workers, fitters and all the rest, and you'll find many trades and all of them important.

THE WEATHER MEN

Not many people, perhaps, appreciate the services which the R.A.F. receives from its meteorological staff. Yet upon the accuracy and skill of their forecasts, the success of British air operations and the safety of the airmen largely depends.

Observations of atmospheric pressure and temperature, wind, cloud, weather and visibility must be regularly made, while their duties consist, as well, of the plotting of weather maps, computing sets of pilot balloon observations, taking charge of self-recording instruments and having complete knowledge of such technical instruments as anemographs, barographs, thermographs, pluviographs, and hygrographs.

There are medical and dental staff, photographers—some of whom are always occupied in making prints of aerial photographs taken over enemy territory—riggers, storekeepers, fitters, turners, and wireless operators. All these ground workers are among those needed to keep the machines in the air. Unspectacular, though their efforts may be, without their help tales of heroism in the air would never be told. They are a vital contribution to the Empire's cause.

FOR THE 1 MAN IN 7 WHO SHAVES EVERY DAY

A Special Shave Cream—It's
Not a Soap, Needs No Brush!

Daily shaving leaves many men's faces
raw and sensitive. Yet, because of his business and social status, one out of every 7 men must shave every day.

To meet this condition, Williams
has now developed GLIDER—a special
cream for daily shavers. With no
soap base, it's a complete departure
from ordinary shave creams. No brush. No lather. No sticky or greasy.

A superabundance of moisture is contained in this rich cream. It won't dry on your face. Applied with
the fingers, it quickly softens each
whisker. A protective layer is formed
over which your razor glides. Off
comes each hair at the base without scraping. Like a cold cream, Glider
helps keep your skin smooth all day.
(Glider is the result of nearly 100
years' experience in making fine
shaving preparations.)

No State Of War
Exists Yet

SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH"
ISTANBUL, Oct. 28 (UP).—Turkish Government officials this afternoon
categorically declared that
no state of war exists between Turkey and Italy.

Metaxas Busy

ATHENS, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—
It is officially stated that
General Metaxas, the Greek
Premier, had a 15-minute telephone talk with the Turkish
President to-day.

General Metaxas also received
the British, Yugo-Slav and Turkish Ministers.

Yugo-Slavia To Be Neutral

LONDON, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—
Primary reports from Belgrade say
that Yugo-Slavia will probably adopt
a neutral attitude while no general
mobilisation has been ordered in Bulgaria although the country's first
A.R.P. measures have been announced.

Bulgaria Also

LONDON, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—Our
policy to-day is one of neutrality and
definitely there is no reason to believe that it will change, declared a Bulgarian diplomat in London.

U.S. Satisfaction

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—
Satisfaction is expressed here that Britain intends rapidly to fulfil the terms of her guarantee to Greece.

It is also hoped that the extension
of hostilities will force the Italian
Fleet into the open.

Shock To Egyptians

CAIRO, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—Informed political circles here were not surprised that the Italian invasion of Greece but the news came as a shock
to ordinary Egyptians.

Faith in Mussolini's word is no
longer felt by the Egyptians or foreigners. It is recalled that on September 15, 1935, Mussolini stated that he had no designs on Yugo-Slavia, Switzerland, Egypt or Greece.

No Formal Statement

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—
After a conference with Mr. Cordell
Hull, the Secretary of State, the Greek Minister stated that he had
not presented formal notice that a state of war existed with Italy.

He said general views on the Greek situation were exchanged at
the conference.

Moscow Attitude

SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH"
MOSCOW, Oct. 28 (UP).—Radio
Moscow reported the developments
in Greece with all appearances of
giving equal prominence to the communications from London, Rome and Athens.

Nothing is known here regarding unconfirmed Balkan reports that Russia had sent a representation to
the Axis Powers against any extension of the war in the Balkans. Such representation is considered most unlikely.

Boris Temporises

SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH"
SOFIA, Oct. 28 (UP).—King Boris,
addressing Parliament, said there was
"reason to look to Bulgaria's future
calmly." He stressed friendship for
the Axis Powers and declared that
every Bulgarian is determined to defend the independence of his country.

"The traditional ties have been re-
established between Bulgaria and Rumania. Our relations with Yugo-Slavia and Turkey are in the spirit of agreements which binds us with them."
"With the Soviet Union, our political and economic relations continue to develop favourably," he said.

Weekly Summary—Battle Of Britain Enemy Lose Two Planes To One

Many More Pilots

LONDON, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—It is stated authoritatively
that German losses in aircraft over Britain during the week ending midnight, Oct. 26, totalled 39 of which at least eight were shot down at night.

British losses were 18 and nine pilots.

LONDON, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—
Enemy air activity over Great Britain to-day has been on a very limited scale, a few bombs being dropped at scattered points in East Anglia and south-east England.

Casualties appear to be very few,
states an Air Ministry communique,
and very little damage has been done.

Many Churches Suffer

LONDON, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—The
Bishop of London stated at the Diocesan Conference that 32 London
churches had been destroyed or rendered unusable by air raids; 47 had
been seriously damaged and very many more had been less seriously
damaged.

Four Alarms

LONDON, Oct. 28 (UP).—The
fourth air raid alarm was sounded at 4.30 p.m. All previous alarms were without incident.

Down In Sea

LONDON, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—Five
German airmen came ashore in a rubber boat on Sunday night behind two East Anglia coast villages.

Night Raids Start

LONDON, Oct. 28 (UP).—At 8.40
p.m. a heavy anti-aircraft barrage
started just after the first night alarm.
Gunfire flashes and the sparkle of
bursting shells was accompanied by
the drone of planes apparently trying
to force their way into the London
area.

The Air Ministry communique
states that four German planes were shot down to-day. In the London
area there were four daylight alarms
which were generally without incident. To-night, raiders were over Wales and the Midlands and northeast Scotland.

Street Sleepers' Meeting To-day

Owing to the black-out,
the "At Home" to volunteer helpers of the Street Sleepers' Shelter Society will be held at 4.15 p.m. instead of 4.45 p.m., and the annual general meeting will follow at 5 p.m. instead of 5.30 p.m., announces the Hon.
Secretary. The times were incorrectly stated in the morning paper advertisement.

A.R.P. Wardens Called Out

All members of the Hongkong
Corps of Air Raid Wardens are called
out for service as from 5 p.m. to-day
until further orders.

This is announced in a Government Gazette Extraordinary issued
this morning.

The two-day black-out exercises
will commence to-day from sunset.

Director's Notice

Those Wardens whose application
to remain in the Colony has been refused by the Evacuation Advisory Committee or who have received
notice to evacuate, will not be mobilized during the Blackout Exercise to-night and to-morrow night.

Rescue & Demolition Parties
On account of the "Blackout" exercise there will be no lecture in Kowloon on Wednesday evening this week.

Names of New French Council of Defence

LONDON, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—The names of members of the Council of Defence of the French Empire appointed by General
Charles de Gaulle are now announced as follows:

General Georges Catroux, former
Governor-General of Indo-China;
Vice-Admiral Emile Muselier, C.
in C. of the Free French Navy and
Air Force;

General de Laminat, Governor-
General of Senegal and Equatorial
Africa;

M. Ebuou Rera, Governor-General
of Chad territory;

General Ulot, Governor-General of French establishments in the Pacific;

General Sice, of the Army Medical Corps in Africa;

Professor Rene Cassin, former President of the Ex-Servicemen's
Association;

Reverend Father Thierry Argentalieu;

Colonel Le Claire, Commissioner of the French Cameroons.

Italy Not Deceived

NEW YORK, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—
The Fascist reformation of France
has merely been outlined without any
"consenting echo" from the people
of France who cling hopefully to British resistance and admire the
rebel de Gaulle, says the "Herald-Tribune" correspondent in Rome
quoting the "Popolo d'Italia".
The Paris correspondent of Rome
newspapers says that de Gaulle has achieved great popularity and Frenchmen long for revenge and the failure of the Italian campaign.

Neutrality Act Applied To Greece

U.S. Decision

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—The United States is applying the Neutrality Act to Greece.

President Roosevelt reached Newark on his way from New York to Washington to-day and is reported to have had telephone discussions with Mr. Cordell Hull, the Secretary of the Treasury and the Attorney General.

The President was to make two speeches to-night and his secretary,
Mr. Stephen Early, said his plans would have to depend on whether he could get by air from Washington
the necessary papers to sign to apply the Neutrality Act to Greece, freezing her credits and cash in the United States.

Mr. Cordell Hull is understood to have been instructed to draft the necessary orders.

The Two Dictators Confer At Florence

Three-Hour Meeting

SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH"
ROME, Oct. 28 (UP).—It is officially reported that the talks
between Hitler and Mussolini
ended shortly before 2 o'clock
this afternoon.

The conversations started
about 11 o'clock in the morning.
After they had finished,
Hitler, Mussolini, Count Ciano,
von Ribbentrop, General Kietel
and Ambassador von Mackensen
had lunch together.

"Reuter" says that Hitler left Florence for Germany at 6 p.m., and quotes a Stockholm report that the German dictator may shortly meet
King Leopold of the Belgians.

Peregrinating Laval

LONDON, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—M.
Laval has left for Paris for further discussion with the Germans and he will be joined by General Huntzinger,
the Vichy Minister of War.

This morning, following a meeting
of the Cabinet and the Council of Ministers, a decree was issued forbidding Frenchmen to listen to British broadcasts in public places.

Machiavellian Moves

FLORENCE, Oct. 28 (UP).—The shadow of Machiavelli hovered over
a green baize table on which Mussolini and Hitler drafted plans for
joint Axis action in Europe during a conference lasting two and a half hours in the fourteenth century
Palazzo Vecchio at Florence to-day.

A huge marble bust of Machiavelli,
who is Mussolini's favourite author,
stood directly behind the Italian
Dictator in the Hall of Clement VII
during the conference, which was attended by the Italian and German Foreign Ministers.

For the first time in 18 years the Anniversary of the Fascist March on Rome missed the front page to-day
as the Italian press splashed reports
of the Florence meeting.

Triumphal March

Hitler's passage through the Brenner
Pass to Florence was similar to a triumphal march with thousands of
people packing railway trucks and cheering their German ally as never before. The Fuehrer received a royal welcome upon his arrival at Colonna
at 9.30 a.m. when the cousin of King Victor, the Duke of Bergamo, boarded
the special train and presented Italy's
official welcome.

Mussolini departed at 6 p.m. for an unknown destination, presumably Rome, and Hitler left for Germany
by train at 5.55 p.m. to-day.

What Was Discussed

SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH"
ROME, Oct. 28 (UP).—Usually reliable quarters said that the main topic of the Mussolini-Hitler conversations was "the Axis Powers" winter campaign in the Mediterranean and the lines on which it should be developed.

Although it is generally conceded that military moves in the Mediterranean are all important, it was affirmed that there would be no relaxation of the Italo-German aerial attack on the British Isles. Most quarters believe that the Mediterranean campaign will also involve Spain. Well informed circles are of the opinion that Russia is in full agreement and was assured of plans in advance. The question as to whether or not Spain is joining the conflict with an assault on Gibraltar is believed to have been discussed.
The material necessities for France this winter were also taken up at the conference.

Hitler's Offer To France

NEW YORK, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—
According to reports from Florence, the Hitler-Mussolini conference at Florence dealt with an agreement whereby Italy will reduce her territorial demands on France in exchange for the use of French warships against the British.

HONGKONG C. C. ANNUAL MEETING

Mr. H. R. B. Hancock And
Mr. T. E. Pearce Elected
Life Members

MR. H. R. B. HANCOCK and the Hon. Mr. T. E. Pearce, two of Hongkong's most prominent cricketers of former years, were elected life members of the Hongkong Cricket Club at the Annual General Meeting held yesterday. Mr. Hancock, re-elected President, reported a very satisfactory year, and pointed to a very sound financial position.

Presenting the report and accounts, he referred to the death of two of the Club's oldest members, Mr. P. M. Hodgson and Mr. J. D. Humphreys.

Mr. Hodgson, he said, offered to take on the duties of secretary when the Club was in low water and by his hard work and sound advice put the affairs on a sound basis. Mr. Humphreys was a very happy personality and was a great favourite with all members. He had served on the Committee and was always willing to serve on sub-committees and do what he could to promote the interests of the Club. He was a member of the Interport team which visited Singapore in 1920.

Mr. Hancock also referred to the death of Mr. G. Polglase, who joined the R.A.F. on the outbreak of war and lost his life as the result of a flying accident.

The meeting stood for a short while in respect for the late members.

STATEMENT OF ACCOUNTS

Mr. Hancock continued: "The statement of accounts is a very satisfactory one. Our profit on working is $3,888.65, against $4,450.07 last year. Working expenses show an increase of $1,042.80, mainly brought about by retarding which is $1,234.43 against $219.40 last year. Sales have increased by $4,102.09 but the percentage of profit has decreased by 1.88 per cent. on sale price, the net result being an increased profit on sales of $242.62. The net profit amounts to $1,330.00, against $2,755.57, but this decrease is brought about by the decrease of $582.02 in the profit under working account and the donations to the S. C. M. Post War Fund of $1,000 and to the B.W.O.P. of $500, and a small reserve against doubtful debts of $240.19.

HAS HE BOWLED WITH WRONG BIAS?

Bowlers in the England-Philippines International match at the Kowloon Cricket Club on Sunday find something very amusing at this moment. Can it be that "Tony" Castro has bowled with the wrong bias?—Ming Yuen.

Welterweight Champion Of The World

In The Eyes Of The Maryland Commission

BALTIMORE, Oct. 15 (UP).—Izzy Janazzo gained a decision on points in a fifteen-round bout with the Cocoa Kid from Puerto Rico last night, winning the Maryland Athletic Commission's recognition as the world's welterweight champion.

The Maryland Commission recently withdrew its recognition of Henry Armstrong's claim to the title a few days before the negro lost the championship to Fritz Zivic. Armstrong was unanimously recognised as the world champion prior to taking the worst beating in his career and losing the title to Zivic last week.

DEMPSEY JUDGE
JACK DEMPSEY, former world heavyweight champion, acted as referee, and cast his vote for Janazzo as did one judge.

The Cocoa Kid received the vote of the second judge and many newspapermen agreed that the Kid should have gained the nod. Three thousand fans watched the bout which was a tame affair lacking a single knockdown.

Izzy used a sharp left jab and bounced around the ring, while the Kid forced the fight. Neither was ever in serious trouble. Janazzo weighed 148 pounds and the Kid exactly the same.

Volunteers' Bowls Competition

"A" Coy. of the A.S.C. (Cullen, Hyde, Meyer and Kern) defeated "B" Coy. (Capt. Filippance, Pearce, Tuck and Roselle), 22-19, in the Volunteer lawn bowls competition yesterday.

MAX WINS IN ONE—With Pat Comiskey, 19-year-old heavyweight of Peterson, N. J., seagick on ropes, Max Baer is about to finish him off, in Jersey City bout. But Jack Dempsey, background, has already stopped bout in 2:39, first round. Comiskey handler blocks Max.

Baskets Beat Angels 10-4 In Navy Cup Polo Tournament

SUPERIOR COMBINATION of the Baskets triumphed over the Angels 10-4 in the second round of the Navy Cup Polo Tournament at Boundary Street yesterday. It was only in the final chukka, however, that the Baskets took full toll of their persistent attack, and scored four goals without reply.

Chattey opened the scoring in the first chukka for the Baskets with a fine hook shot after receiving from Wilson, but the Angels retaliated when Morgan capped a fine movement down field and equalised.

Baskets scored twice more in this chukka. Wilson from a penalty award against Lewis for crossing, and later Bompas from a pass from Wilson. It was the latter, incidentally, who was constantly in the lime-light.

SECOND CHUKKA

CHATTEY all but increased the score at the opening of the second chukka, when he missed narrowly from the hit out. Then a very fine shot from Morgan was stopped by Wilson, who hit up to Bompas, who in turn permitted Wilson to score in a melle on the 40-yard line.

On resumption, Morgan broke away and taking the ball into the Baskets' area reduced arrears with a fine hook shot.

Atkinson got away following the throw-in, but his shot was stopped by Lewis, whose clearance, however, was intercepted by Wilson who enabled Bompas to score.

Led 5-2 the Angels instituted a great attack which culminated in

World's Most Elaborate Rowing Course

TOKYO, Oct. 28 (Domei).—"Orphan" of the cancelled Twelfth Olympiad, which was scheduled to be held in Tokyo in 1940, the world's most elaborate rowing course was opened on Sunday.

Costing Yen 3,000,000, the course is 2,400 metres long, 70 metres wide and 2.5 metres deep, and draws its water through a 2-metre wide sluice gate from the Arakawa River.

Constructed partly by convict labour, the course took 200 days to complete.

Japan National Sports Meet

TOKYO, Oct. 28 (Domei).—The second day of the National Sports Meet began this morning, with twelve different games being contested at different grounds in the city. Basketball and volleyball contests as well as baseball games were played, while a mass gymnastic display was given by a large group of school girls.

An interesting contest was the bicycle race at which department store messengers, postmen, fire-brigade members and others vied for the honour of their teams.

Lewis reducing the score to 5-3 at the end of the second chukka.

THIRD CHUKKA

ANGELS attacked again at the opening of the third chukka, but had the disappointment of seeing Morgan's shot going wide, but in the succeeding struggle in Baskets' half, Lewis sent the ball between the posts to reduce the score to 5-4.

The Angels continued to attack but were ridden off the ball, and eventually Wilson ended the struggle with a grand shot from the 60-yard line to put the Baskets 6-4 in the lead.

FINAL CHUKKA

MORGAN had bad luck at the opening of the final chukka. He took the ball up from the throw-in but missed with his parting shot, and from the hit out again missed.

Baskets then came into their own and dominated play scoring four more goals, all by Wilson, who thus scored seven of the ten goals.

The teams were: Baskets—Wilson, Bompas, Chattey and Atkinson.

Angels—Morgan, Lewis, Hunt and Hancock.

"Is my bath ready, Hawkins?"

"Not quite, Sir. They're just dusting it."

"A gesture of old world courtesy, no doubt, but was it really necessary?"

"Very necessary indeed, Sir, as it happens to be a hip-bath which has lain some years in the coach-house. His Lordship rarely entertains."

"His Lordship's notions of hospitality are not of this century. He seemed to think he had a sacred duty to lay me low beneath the table. I marvel that I'm here to tell the tale."

"Yet in some ways His Lordship is well abreast of modern thought. This bottle of Rosé's Lime Juice, Sir, in your room."

"Placed there by His Lordship's own hand, Hawkins. And a very refreshing drink following upon a one-sided battle with his Lordship's decanter."

"Yes, Sir, and Rosé's has still further virtues. It is justly renowned for mitigating the after-effects of alcohol, vulgarly known as morning after."

Empress Of Britain's Gallant Fate; Fired All Guns To End

LONDON, Oct. 28 (Reuter).—Survivors from the Empress of Britain, landed at a western port on Sunday. They declared that the 42,500-ton liner was bombed 700 miles off Ireland on Saturday morning.

The attacking aircraft then disappeared but returned and dropped four more bombs, including incendiaries.

A number of people were killed when the bombs exploded and some of the ship's lifeboats caught fire and could not be lowered. But as there was little danger of the ship sinking immediately, there was plenty of time for the passengers to take to the lifeboats before the liner was completely ablaze from stem to stern.

The last people were taken off some six hours after the attack.

No Panic

In the meantime there was no panic, a number of women and children calmly obeying instructions to remain until the time to leave.

The youngest passenger was a baby boy of 11 months who was strapped to a sailor's back.

Captain Charles Sapsworth, the commander, stood on the bridge encouraging his gunners as they battled with the raider until all were killed or wounded and the guns were out of action.

Captain Sapsworth is believed to be among the survivors.

Rafts From Doors

The crew made rafts out of cabin doors in case the boats proved insufficient.

A member of the crew declared that the raider machine-gunned the passengers after the ship's anti-aircraft guns were out of action. He praised the women stewards who, he said, behaved marvellously.

An R.A.F. man reported the damaged engine of a lifeboat and this was used to tug heavy lifeboats from place to place picking up survivors while a naval officer aboard the liner led a party of men through flames and smoke to lower a lifeboat which saved many lives.

A British flying boat spotted the blazing liner and brought warships to the rescue.

Pedder Street Shop Subject of Claim

An action for $800 was brought against K. Weiss, manufacturers' representative, by Lucy Tong, of Tong's China Delight, 61 Des Voeux Road Central, before Mr. Justice E. H. Williams at the Summary Court this morning.

The claim was made up of balance of purchase price of fixtures and fittings, and rental due for the ground floor of 8 Pedder Street.

Mr. M. A. da Silva appeared for plaintiff, and defendant was represented by Mr. D. McCallum.

Mr. Silva said that his client was at one time carrying on business at 8 Pedder Street, ground floor, which she rented from the Chinese Estates, Ltd. at $800 a month and on payment of two months' deposit. She had spent over $2,000 in decorating and fitting the premises, but towards the end of July, 1939 she found she was losing money because of the heavy rental.

At this time defendant saw her manager and tried to persuade him to let him have the premises for his business, which was that of men's wear specialist. After several discussions, an arrangement was arrived at between plaintiff's manager and defendant whereby the latter was to pay $800 for the fittings and fixtures, take over the tenancy and to sub-let the cockpit to plaintiff at $50 a month. However, when the landlords were approached about the transfer of the tenancy, they said they would require three months' deposit if defendant was to take it over.

Short Of Funds

Defendant then informed plaintiff's manager and plaintiff, who had by this time returned from Shanghai, that he was short of funds and was unable to pay the $800 for the fixtures or three months' deposit. A new arrangement was arrived at whereby the tenancy was to continue under the name of plaintiff, and the premises, with the exception of the cockpit, sub-let to defendant for $750

a month from September 1. Defendant then paid $1,400 on account and gave plaintiff a series of post-dated cheques to the extent of $1,750—$800 as purchase price for the fittings, $750 as rental for September and $1,000 to cover the deposit which plaintiff had with the landlords.

It was understood by both parties that if by the end of September all the cheques were met and honoured, defendant would raise a further month's deposit and take over the tenancy, but in the event of defendant being unable to do so, plaintiff would continue to hold the tenancy until such time as he was able to take it over.

Cheques Dishonoured

All these arrangements, continued Mr. Silva, were made verbally. When the post-dated cheques were eventually presented they were dishonoured. Plaintiff was approached but he kept putting plaintiff off on the ground that he was short of funds.

Mr. Silva concluded by saying that he understood the defence was that his client had failed to arrange the tenancy with the landlords and had taken away certain fittings.

Following evidence by plaintiff and her manager, Sheung Siu-lam, the case was adjourned.

Hongkong Hero Is Prisoner of War

Flight Lieutenant J. R. T. Smalley, D.F.C., born in Hongkong 21 years ago, is now reported to be a prisoner of war.

News to this effect has been received by his father, Dr. J. T. Smalley, from England.

Flight Lieutenant Smalley, up to the time that his plane was forced down on October 17, had been in the thick of the fighting since the German invasion of the Low Countries. He was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross in August. He has had several narrow escapes.

In the fighting in France he was forced down in flames, but managed to escape from his machine unhurt.

Shortly afterwards, he was forced down in the English Channel. He was in the water for several hours before he was rescued.

He was again forced down on October 17—it is not stated where this occurred—and there was no news of him until October 23 when he was reported to be a prisoner of war.

All passengers from Manchuria are affected.

H.K. JAPANESE RELEASED

Yamaguchi, the Japanese merchant who was arrested here and detained at La Salle College Internment Camp on suspicion of breach of the local defence regulations, has been released on instructions from London.

No other official statement on the subject is authorised.

Thus declared the new Governor of Macao Commander Gabriel Mauricio Teixeira in an interview with a "Telegraph" representative this morning when asked to comment on Portugal's position on the Nazi-dominated continent of Europe.

The new Governor arrived by a Netherlands liner early this morning and will leave for Macao by the Portuguese sloop Goncalvo Velho today.

"We rely implicitly on our leader. He is to command; we to obey. I can not think of anybody more capable than him," the new Governor added.

Succeeds Barbosa

Commander Teixeira, who has been appointed in succession to the late Governor Barbosa was formerly a member of the Portuguese Parliament. At 43 he is one of the youngest Governors in the Portuguese Empire. He is a former naval officer and served in Portuguese East Africa as Acting Governor of a province in Mozambique. He is accompanied by his wife, two daughters and son.

The new Governor, who is on his first visit to the Far East, speaks English well. He said he learnt English as a child before Portuguese being taught by an English aunt.

"I have many English friends including friends in high naval posts," he added.

He was met on arrival early this morning by the Acting Consul for Portugal, Senhor F. P. de V. Soares and the Governor's Aide-de-Camp, Capt. S. H. Batty-Smith, who presented Senhora Teixeira with a bouquet.

Commander Teixeira said he hoped to return shortly to Hongkong to make a formal visit during which he would meet Lieut-General E. F. Norton and members of the local Portuguese community.

DOCTORS AND SCIENTISTS USE HORLICKS IN HOSPITAL TESTS

RECENTLY tests were made in a great hospital on men and women who complained of always feeling tired.

It was found that these people had an excess of acid waste products in their blood during sleep.

This acid waste kept the brain and nerves 'on edge' all night even though the rest of the body was sound asleep.

But when Horlicks was given to these people last thing at night, this excess acid waste was completely neutralised. They woke refreshed, with increased energy and vitality.
